SOUTHERNERS GET YOCHOW; CHANG FLEES TO HANKOW

Tuchun Evacuates Last Stronghold In Hunan Without Argument

UNABLE TO FIGHT

Withdrawal Forced When Enemy Is Still 11 Miles Away

TROOPS DISARMED

Not Allowed To Enter Hupeh Unless Weapons Are Surrendered

Southern troops occupied Yochow on Sunday after General Chang Chin-yao, the Northern tuchun, had evacuated the city on Saturday. Chang and his family are now in Hankow, taking refuge at a foreign hospital.

The city was taken almost without fighting. General Feng Yu-hsian, the Christian Division Commander at Changteh, has also withdrawn to Shasi with the consent of the Northen Government.

When General Chao Hung-ti, commanding the vanguards of the Southern forces, bombarded Lushan, 11 miles from Yochow, on Saturday morning, Chang gathered together his routed soldiers and withdrew northward to Sinti. Later in the day, he moved further to Kiayu and Sunday a gunboat conveyed him to Hankow.

When evacuation of the Northern troops was completed, no Southern soldiers were yet in sight in Yochow. The foreign residents left the city when evacuation began.

HUPEH ACTS

Chang is allowed to come to Hankow with his staff and family only. General Wang Chuan-yuan, the Hupeh Tuchun, has drawn a military cordon up river to prevent the repulsed forces from entering his territory with arms.

All soldiers from Hunan desiring admission must surrender their arms before entering, he ordered.

A Presidential mandate, issued Saturday, reprimanded Chang Ching-yao for his successive defeats and ordered a large list of military and civil officials in Hunan to be dismissed and sent to trial for negligence, including the brother and son of the Hunan Tuchun, Chang Ching-tan and Chang Chi-shung.

NEW LEADER HESITATES

General Wu Kwan-hsin, the brother-in-law of Field Marshal Tuan, is still hesitating to move to his new post. Three times he has declined the honor of becoming Investigation Commissioner of Hunan.

Peking, however, has again asked him to march down to Hunan with one division and one brigade of loyal forces, to crush the South.

The report of General Wang of Hupeh indicates that Chang's troops are no longer able to fight and, unless a strong force is sent down to his own province to lift up the morale of his troops, it was feared that Hupeh too would be endangered by the defeat.

First Photograph Of May Day Riots In Paris

Despite the extraordinary precautions taken by the French Government to curb the May-Day uprising by extremist factions in Paris, the mobs roared through the Paris streets, and in frequent clashes with the police several people were killed. The industry, trade and transport of the country were completely tied up. This photograph, one of the first to reach this country, shows Paris gendarmes aiding a wounded man.

CONVENTION ON; COX IS FAVORED AS DEM. NOMINEE

Davis, McAdoo And Wilson In Van; "Bone-Drys" To Fight For Support

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 25.—The Times Chicago correspondent telegraphs:

"The Democratic situation is confused. The convention will be divided into camps, namely: the large body of Federal office holders, favoring the League and the Treaty; (2) A good number of prohibitionists; (3) The Western Radicals and (4) the Eastern contingent, led by the bosses, opposing prohibition and the League of Nations.

"Other smaller questions include Ireland and the industrial policy, while there may be a row over Japanese exclusion."

"The favorite at present is Governor Cox of Ohio; who, it is thought, might carry Ohio against Senator Harding.

"Mr. Davis, Ambassador at London; Mr. McAdoo, President Wilson, Vice-President Marshall, Attorney-General Palmer, Mr. Champ Clark and Mr. Bryan follow in the order named."

HOOVER URGES G.O.P. TO RATIFY TREATY

New York, June 24.—The Evening Post publishes a statement by Mr. Herbert Hoover urging Republicans to demand the earliest possible ratification of the Peace Treaty without Article Ten. Mr. Hoover contends that economic and moral pressure are sufficient to accomplish international peace and disarmament.

Note: Article Ten says: "The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve, as against external aggression, the territorial integrity and existing political independence, of all members of the League.

"In case of any such aggression, or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the Council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

REED WILL FIGHT

San Francisco, June 24.—It is expected that the sitting of the National Democratic Committee, which is being held here tomorrow, will prove a lively one if Senator Reed tries for a place as a delegate. He is expected to fight his own battle.

Senator Reed claims that he has been elected for the 5th Missouri district and, although his name does not appear on the list, he declared on his arrival tonight that his credentials are regular and will be filed tomorrow morning.

Mr. Bryan, on his arrival, said that he expected to see the battle-lines sharply drawn between the "bone-drys" and their opponents. The "bone-drys" have a working majority on the committee.

STILL FOR McADOO

Mr. McAdoo's supporters have not lost hope. They anticipate a deadlock and are shaping their course accordingly.

Mr. Marshall, the Vice-President, who has just arrived, said that he was in favor of a "safe and sane platform, putting a good man on it and letting him go to it."

He said that he was not a candidate and had not yet decided for whom he would vote. He did not anticipate a serious prohibition issue.

SIX MONTHS JAIL IS PENALTY FOR RECKLESS DRIVING

Six months imprisonment without alternative of fine.

This was the punishment meted out yesterday to a Chinese chauffeur convicted of furious driving when he appeared before British Assessor Grant Jones.

The Assessor recently announced that prison terms and not money would be exacted for reckless drivers, both foreign and Chinese. He showed his determination to fulfill that promise when a Sinza Road case came up yesterday.

It was shown that the chauffeur drove to the right of a tram car, causing a collision with it and a ricsha. The Assessor promptly put into effect his new ruling.

IRELAND RINGING WITH SHOTS; MANY DEAD AND DYING

Railway Deadlock Spreads; Guards And Soldiers Are Seized By Rebels

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24, 10:35 p.m.—An official statement issued this evening says that the situation at Londonderry is easier. There has been very little firing since midnight. At 8 o'clock this morning a man was shot dead in Budge Street.

Troops taking food to the gas workers were heavily fired on and replied with machine-guns.

The military stopped a Roman Catholic clergyman and three civilians and found several hundred rounds of ammunition on the clergyman, who has been provisionally released.

Later a boy was shot dead in the grounds of the orphanage

SHOPS REOPENING

All was quiet this afternoon. The shops are reopening and people are beginning to circulate. The military have begun removing the sandbags.

Meanwhile the railway deadlock in Ireland is spreading. There were no trains from Limerick today.

The police, whom the railwaymen refuse to move, remain in the trains. Many lines are blocked and large parts of the south west of Ireland are isolated.

The Cork-Dublin mail-train was held up by signals at Blarney station yesterday evening and an armed band seized and carried off the two guards to an unknown destination.

Seven soldiers were overpowered in the streets of Ennis, County Clare, by a band of men and the soldiers' arms, ammunition and helmets were carried off.

CABLE FOR HELP

London, June 24.—It is officially announced that the Londonderry city magistrates have again urgently telegraphed to the Chief Secretary for Ireland expressing "alarm at the Government's inaction," and stating that they consider the situation desperate and they fear it may become still worse, as the food supply is running out and the gas is almost exhausted.

On the other hand, in the House of Commons this afternoon, Mr. Denis Henry, Attorney-General for Ireland, gave a more reassuring account of the situation.

DESULTORY SHOOTING

He said that there has desultory firing during the night, mainly from the house-tops. Wounded civilians who were being conveyed in ambulances by troops were fired on, and the troops replied. The results of this exchange of fire were not known.

The city was quiet this morning. Steps had been taken to secure the fullest co-operation between the civil and military authorities. Curfew regulations had been applied and the military commanded the city.

The Attorney-General for Ireland added that he had no information that any soldier had been wounded. The military had full discretion to take any steps they thought fit.

BANKS REOPEN

London, June 25.—Londonderry had a comparatively quiet night, although there was much sniping, to which the troops replied. The banks reopened today. No gas supplies will be available for a week.

The committee of the Ulster Unionist Council has passed a resolution calling on the Government to protect the lives and property of loyal inhabitants of

CABINET IS ANNOUNCED

Lloyd George Says Kaiser Is "Not Quite Safe Yet," In Answer To Query

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24.—It is announced that Lord d'Abernon has been appointed British Ambassador at Berlin; M. Charles Laurent, to be French Ambassador; and Signor M. G. de Martino, at present charge d'affaires at Berlin and previously Secretary-General at the Ministry for Foreign Affairs, to be Italian Ambassador.

Lord d'Abernon, better known as Sir Edgar Vincent (he was raised to the peerage in 1914), was formerly financial adviser to the Egyptian Government, and later Governor of the Imperial Ottoman Bank, Constantinople, (1889-1897).

More recently Lord d'Abernon has devoted his wide experience to problems of home and Imperial affairs, serving as chairman of the Dominions Royal Trade Commission and chairman of the Central Control Board (liquor traffic). The new Ambassador is sixty-three years of age.

M. Charles Laurent is an eminent financial expert, and formerly held the position of Director of Public Accounts at the Ministry of Finance.

Signor de Martino, the only professional diplomat of the three new Ambassadors, was one of Italy's leading respresentatives at the Peace Conference. He is an expert on Oriental affairs.

GERMAN PRESS APPROVES

Paris, June 27.—The German newspapers generally comment favorably on the appointment of M. Charles Laurent as French Ambassador in Berlin.

The Vossische Zeitung is loud in its praises of the French Government's choice of an Ambassador.

The Lokal Anzeiger sees in the choice of M. Laurent that France desires the resumption of good economic relationship with Germany.

Vorwaerts says: "The appointment of the Allies' Ambassadors indicates clearly that Germany must carry out the Treaty of Versailles and pay what she owes."

INVITATION LATER

London, June 24.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, replying to a question Mr. Lloyd George said that Germany would be invited to become a member of the League of Nations when she showed an earnest desire to carry out her obligations under the Peace Treaty.

Mr. Lloyd George added that he felt very strongly that Germany was not making an effort with regard to disarmament.

Replying to Capt. J. T. Tudor Rees (Liberal), the Prime Minister said that no further steps had been taken with regard to the extradition of the ex-Kaiser, because the Netherlands Government had refused to hand him over.

Capt. W. Wedgwood Benn (Liberal): "Then this is the finish of the talk of hanging the Kaiser?

Mr. Lloyd George: "I am afraid your friend is not quite safe yet."

TURKS PRESENT OBJECTIONS TO PEACE TREATY

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 27.—The observations on the Turkish Peace Treaty, presented by Samad Ferid Pasha, the Grand Vizer, arrived at the Quai d'Orsay yesterday morning.

The Petit Parisien understands that the Grand Vizer considers the terms with regard to Smyrna unacceptable. He also raises objections to the clauses, which place the Straits under the control of an International Commission, observing that these clauses deprive the Ottoman Government of its sovereignty over the Straits.

Nevertheless the Turkish delegation is prepared to accept the principle of international control, on condition that Turkey is represented on the Straits Commission.

The Grand Vizier also protests against the financial clauses imposed on Turkey, and also against certain other clauses relating to the capitulations.

"Home Rule" Amendment To Irish Resolution Fails To Carry

(Reuter's Service)

Scarborough, June 24.—The Labor Conference has passed the following resolutions:

(1) A resolution moved by Mr. Tom Shaw, M.P., condemning the Peace Treaty as destructive instead of constructive, and demanding its revision; also demanding recognition of the Russian Soviet and the arrestation of chaos in Central Europe.

(A Socialist addendum demanding an immediate general strike, with a view to "ending the open and covert participation of the British Government in attacks on the Soviet Republic" was overwhelmingly defeated).

FULL RIGHTS TO EGYPT

(2) A resolution urging full recognition of the rights of the Egyptians to independent, responsible government and limitation of British action in Egypt to that to which a responsible nationalist government has freely consented.

(3) A resolution declaring that the Irish people are entitled to decide for themselves the form of government they desire, and that the time is past for half measures; and demanding that the Government shall immediately provide an election to a constituent assembly for all Ireland by proportional representation.

(This resolution was carried by a large majority. An amendment in favor of giving Ireland home rule within the Empire was defeated).

London, June 25.—The Labor Conference, which is being held here, has rejected by a large majority the motion that the Labor Party secede from the Second International and also the motion that the party apply for affiliation to the Third Communist International.

FIREMEN FIGHT UNIQUE COMBAT

Dissuaded From Duel Members Of French Department Use Fire Hoses

A combat, probably without parallel, that was fought yesterday at the French Fire Station on Avenue Joffre by M. Henri Numa and M. George Clergue, both members of the French volunteer fire brigade, was brought about after the principals, who have been on terms of enmity for some time, had been prevented from fighting a duel with revolvers. The combat may with all propriety be called an affair of honor and in carrying it out every detail of the code duello was rigidly observed. The two men fought with fire hoses.

It may be explained that under the conditions that were imposed at the meeting yesterday the weapons that were used, while not dangerous to life, were wholly formidable. The men fought at seven meters, or about twenty feet, and at this range for a space of some fifteen minutes they directed the powerful three-inch streams under high pressure at each other until M. Numa after slowly giving ground was forced first to his knees and then down and disarmed.

CHALLENGE IS GIVEN

The combat with the fire hoses was arranged Sunday when Captain Marcel Chapeaux, head of the brigade, learned that the ill feeling between the two men had reached a point where a challenge had been given and accepted following a bitter quarrel. The men were dissuaded from their purpose to fight with deadly weapons only when the novel method of settling their differences was proposed.

The combat took place at 6 o'clock in the grassy area behind the fire station. Parallel ladders twenty feet apart on the grass marked the positions of the principals and the two lines of new hose with their huge brass nozzles that led to these were attached to one of the pumps of the department's equipment.

A group of about twenty spectators, most of whom are connected with the volunteer fire fighting service, and several well known in French commercial circles, gathered to witness the affair after the outer gates had been closed. Captain Chapeaux and M. K. Charleux acted as seconds for M. Numa and Doctor Tartois and Mr. A. Chapeaux acted for M. Clergue. The seconds were in bathing suits.

"NO QUARTER" ON CONTRACTS, SAYS ENGLAND

(Reuter's Service)

Manchester, June 28.—The Manchester Chamber of Commerce, after discussion, has decided to cable the British Chamber of Commerce in Shanghai that it has carefully considered the position of affairs in the China market regarding the fall in exchange and other causes and is unanimously of the opinion that merchants should decline to cancel orders booked.

Any other course, it is felt, would be detrimental to the best interests of trade as a whole.

Giolitti Announces New Italian Plans

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, June 24.—In the Chamber of Deputies today, Signor Giolitti, the Premier, announcing the composition of the Cabinet, said that the Government did not favor a protectorate for Albania but desired her independence.

He explained the bill for modifying the Constitution, whereby it was proposed that Parliamentary sanction should be necessary in future before war was declared or treaties were valid.

Other forthcoming bills provide for the cultivation of wheat and cotton in the Italian colonies, especially in Somaliland; legislation for the surrender of war-profits to the State; the increase of death duties and the taxation of all kinds of financial securities.

Signor Giolitti declared that Italy must establish without delay friendly relations with all other nations as well as the Allies and must even begin unrestricted normal relations even with Russia.

He promised strong measures to reduce prices and said that he would ask for Parliamentary Powers to deal with speculators.

Poles Stubbornly Resist Bolsheviki

London, June 24.—A Polish review of the military situation states that, after recouping their forces, the Poles remain in possession of the Kieff-Odessa railway. Stubborn fighting is proceeding forty miles north and west of Kieff.

The Poles and Ukrainians still occupy Podolia and Volhynia, while to the north, the old front line on the Dvina and Beresina has been completely re-established.

RICE IS NOW $15.20; RIOT IN POOTUNG CAUSES FEUD

Local Authorities May Import From Saigon And Hongkong

SITUATION GRAVE

Laborers Panicky And Voice Threats As Food Prices Mount Higher

HINT AT HOARDS

Circulars Claim That Profiteers Still Keep Big Stock

Rice hit the $15.20 mark late yesterday as the result of the failure of the arrival of any rice junks at Shanghai Sunday. A disorderly outbreak between rice-shop keepers, paupers and police took place in Pootung yesterday morning following the arrest of five women for looting rice shops. A general riot was averted only by the release of the looters. The shops are now closed for fear of further looting. Police protection, they claim, is inadequate.

When the price advanced to $14.60, local authorities in the afternoon called a meeting of the rice dealers, gentry and heads of the Chambers of Commerce. The meeting decided to report the grave state of affairs in Shanghai and planned to bring shiploads of rice from Saigon and Hongkong, where large quantities are said to be in stock and can be secured at little over the normal price, which the present market value has doubled.

THREATEN STRIKES

The labor element is on the verge of revolt. With exception of a few mills and plants in which pay has already been raised, talk of strikes prevails. Several labor associations have made the situation worse by circulating handbills uttering bitter statements against alleged profiteers and rice-dealers, whom they accuse of having hoarded the cereal and shipped stocks to Japan for immense profits.

The cheap rice exchanges are working overtime every day. Instead of 50 piculs a day, each is selling over 100 piculs. Long lines in front each of the depots stand from dawn till sunset and there is fear of a shortage of supply any day as the rice is shipped from Hunan, where internal strike has cut all communications.

The lone exchange in the International Settlement, the one maintained by the Yu Chung Rice Shop, Fukien Road, has stopped its charitable work. It announces that the management is absolutely unable to purchase any more from Hunan as the result of the internal warfare. The shop sold more than 4,000 piculs of Honan rice during the last 20 days at $8.50 per picul.

BRITAIN STILL UNDECIDED ON JAP PACT ISSUE

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, replying to Mr. Carlyon Bellairs, Mr. Lloyd George said that the question of the renewal of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was being considered.

The Government, he said, was not aware of a feeling that the Alliance should not be renewed until the Government knew the views of the new Government which would come into power in the United States in March.

The Government was not in a position to make a public statement at present. It had not been decided whether to give notice in July of termination of the agreement, or to allow it to continue for another year.

Mr. Lloyd George: "All relevant views will be taken into account."

WANTS WORK; NOT WAR

Premier Announces Refusal To Leave Syria; Insists She Is Needed

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 26.—An important debate took place in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday on French policy in the East.

M. Aristide Briand, the ex-Premier, in the course of a speech, defended the policy, which he followed in 1916. In conclusion he said:

"France wants the place in the sun to which she is entitled. She wants to work and not to have an economic war.

"What of tomorrow? Working hours, wages, all this will be influenced by the strength of our country. The affairs of France must be treated from the double point of view, material and moral. I believe that they are in good hands since they are in the hands of M. Millerand."

LAUDS PREMIERS

M. Tardieu then described the policy of M. Clemenceau's cabinet. Referring to the question of Mosul, the former Minister declared:

"The agreements made by M. Briand in 1916 were auspicious and M. Clemenceau made auspicious use of them. M. Millerand will also turn them to good advantage."

In the course of the debate M. Millerand assured Parliament that the understanding between Great Britain, France and Italy was never more complete and more reliant than at the present moment.

FRANCE IN SYRIA

Paris, June 27.—In the course of yesterday's debate in the Chamber of Deputies on the Government's Near Eastern policy, M. Millerand made the following statement:

"France is in Syria. She refuses to leave Syria. She remains there in accordance with the principles, laid down in the Covenant of the League of Nations, to bring to the Syrian population the aid and support for which they ask and on which they have the right to rely.

"France is not there as an enemy of Turkey but as a collaborator, to develop with her the economic wealth which has not yet been put to account, that is the civilising role which France assumes in Syria."

In reply to a question, the Premier added that the policy of the Government in occupied territories was to reduce the number of effectives as soon as possible and to endeavor, before everything, to replace force by diplomacy.

NO POLICY CHANGE

Paris, June 26.—In the course of the debate on foreign affairs in the Chamber of Deputies today, M. Millerand denied that there was any change in the Government's policy in Syria, but declared that action must be proportionable to available means.

France, the Premier proceeded, was not entering into political relations with the Soviet, until the latter became a real Government; until it understood that it could not appear to converse with another Government and at the same time send a message to British workmen inciting them to revolution against that Government; and until it accepted responsibility for the international obligations of preceding Russian Governments.

SMUTS DECLARES FOR UNIFICATION

South African Statesman Is Against One-Power Voice For Britain

(Reuter's Service)

Capetown, June 25.—In the Union House of Assembly today speaking in support of the League of Nations, General Smuts, dealing with the position of the British Empire, said he hoped that the Constitutional Conference, if it were held in 1921, would frame a scheme for solving the problem of how to conduct the affairs of the Empire on a common basis when they no longer had one great Power speaking for the whole, but six independent, equal and free members of a great League.

UNANIMOUS CONSENT

With regard to the question of how it would be possible for the Empire to speak with one voice, General Smuts declared that no resolutions should be taken without unanimous consent of all the members of the Empire.

He would, he said, never agree to opinion in South Africa being coerced by a majority vote of the rest of the Empire; and he was sure that the other Dominions would take up a similar position.

Not only the Dominions, but the Imperial Government, he added, should take up the common ground that no resolution, binding any part of the Empire, could be taken without its free consent; and the only way to give effect to this view could be the adoption of the conference system.

Morioka Japanese Banker, Suicides When Ruin Comes

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Nara, June 28.—Mr. Kiyojiro Morioka, the well-known banker and member of Parliament, committed suicide yesterday morning by cutting his throat with a short sword. The failure of his bank appears to have been the cause of the tragedy.

The admiration for self-destruction as a heroic expression of apology for failure to meet one's obligations appears still to linger on the minds of the people. The Osaka Asahi describes the banker's death as "a magnificent suicide."

Admiral Gleaves Goes Up Yangtsze

American Naval Units Will Co-Operate With Others In Troubles Area

British, Japanese and American naval squadrons are co-operating in dealing with the disorders in the Hankow district and south of that city that have followed the recent outbreak of fighting in the province of Hunan and, it is understood, also in quelling the bandits that long have been terrorising the entire section of the upper Yangtsze river.

In addition to the other American warcraft that lately have been despatched up the Yangtsze the torpedo boat Elliott, of the fleet of seven, recently engaged in target practice at Chefoo, yesterday followed the fleet flagship Rizal on up river service. It is significant that Admiral Albert Gleaves, Commander of the American Asiatic squadron, left on the Elliott. Commanders of British and Japanese squadrons have been in the troubled areas near Hankow for several days.

Sugar Fund Low; Food Head Explains

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. James Seddon, Mr. Charles McCurdy, the Food Controller, said that the financial reserves of the Sugar Supply Commission had been reduced in 1918 by approximately £4,000,000 owing to Great Britain's maintenance of the retail price of sugar below the level of the world's sugar prices.

The total production of America, including Porto Rico, the Philippines and the Hawaiian Islands, was estimated not to exceed 1,900,000 tons; whereas American consumption amounted to over four million tons.

There was no indication of a sugar corner, Mr. McCurdy added.

Trans-Pacific Magazine And Ledger Syndicate To Have Own Service

World wide interest that is being taken in Far Eastern matters was again strikingly demonstrated yesterday when Mr. B. W. Fleisher, publisher of the Japan Advertiser, one of the most widely known newspapermen and publisher of the Trans-Pacific Magazine, arrived here yesterday from Peking and announced that he has accepted the management of the Far Eastern department, both business and editorial, for the new Ledger Syndicate. This means that the powerful Curtis Publishing Company, owners of the Saturday Evening Post, the Philadelphia Public Ledger, The Ladies Home Journal, The Country Gentleman and various other printing and publishing enterprises, is to take an active part in affairs in this part of the world.

Mr. Fleisher, who is accompanied by Mrs. Fleisher and their two daughters, the Misses Marion and Simone, spent a month at the Northern capital. Mr. R. A. Burr has been placed in charge of the Fleisher Curtis interests there.

In Shanghai Mr. Arthur West, formerly city editor of the New York Sun, has recently arrived from New York to direct the affairs of the Bureau. Mr. West has opened offices at 1 Balfour Road.

The Trans-Pacific is a financial and economic monthly publication, of exceptional typographical appearance and sound constructive policy covering China, Japan, the Philippines, Siberia and Australia, with authoritative articles on trade conditions.

Mr. Fleisher has only recently returned to the Orient from the United States where he arranged for the extension of the Curtis interests to the Far East and prepared for further development of the scope of the Trans-Pacific Magazine. While in America he arranged that Mr. Emil M. Scholz, formerly publisher of the New York Evening Post, shall act as New York representative of the Trans-Pacific.

The Fleisher party, which is stopping at the Astor House, is to sail for Tokio on the Empress of Japan, July 3. In the meantime the publisher expects to have completed all his plans for his publicity and advertising campaigns in this part of the Orient which he hopes to see widely benefited as to trade relations as a result of his activities.

GERMANS MENACE YET, SAYS FOCH

War Hero Urges "Perfect Union" Of Allies, As At Present

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, June 26.—Marshal Foch has made an important statement to the Press on the subject of the military situation, which the Allies have had to face since the signing of the armistic.

With regard to the situation in the Near and Middle East, he said that the Allies could master the situation if they remained in perfect union and if they employed all the forces at their disposal in carrying out a policy, reasonably commensurate with their interests.

UNITED NOW

"The Allies are at present closely united," adds the Marshal, "and therefore everything should go well."

Referring to the disarmament of Germany, Marshal Foch said:

"The destruction of the 15,000 German guns does not mean the final removal of the danger, which Germany can cause to the peace of the world.

"As long as the diabolical spirit, which still exists in Germany, has not disappeared, it is our duty to the next generation to see that our precautions never relax."

ASKS CO-OPERATION

Paris, June 24.—Co-operation, organisation and mutual understanding amongst the nations was the keynote sounded by M. Clementel, the Senator and former Minister of Commerce, in his address of welcome to the delegates to the International Commerce Convention, which held its first meeting here yesterday to form an International Chamber of Commerce.

A temporary set of rules to govern the convention until the adoption of statutes and rules for the International Chamber of Commerce, were presented by the organisation committee and accepted by the meeting.

Britain's Heroes Tendered Ovation

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 26.—There was a remarkable scene in London today when some four hundred Victoria Cross heroes of the late and former wars marched, preceded by a Guards band, from Wellington Barracks to Buckingham Palace to attend the King's garden party, given in their honor.

A huge crowd cheered them, especially the disabled men, who were conveyed in a dozen motor-cars.

HOPE IN AUSTRALIA

(Reuter's Service)

Melbourne, June 26.—The situation affecting the electricians and gasworkers' strike is now most hopeful, employers and workers having arrived at a compromise.

Austro-Hungary Breach Widened

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24.—The boycott of Hungary, proclaimed by the International Trade-Union conference at Amsterdam, on account of the "White-Terror" in Hungary, has led to a stoppage of railway, postal and telegraphic communication between Austria and Hungary.

Non-Social-Democrat railwaymen in Austria, who oppose the strike, succeeded in getting a train through; consequently the Vienna railwaymen struck, completely holding up Austrian goods traffic.

Meanwhile Hungary is retaliating by withholding supplies from Austria.

Flax Substitutes All Unsatisfactory

(Reuter's Service)

London, June 24.—The report of the Board of Trade Empire Flax-growing Committee upon flax substitutes concludes that none of the substitutes such as jute, ramie or hemp, can satisfactorily replace flax in the manufacture of fine linens, damasks and similar articles, though probably further investigation would enable greater utilisation of substitutes.

The solution of the present difficulties of manufacturers, the report declares, must be sought in an extension of flax-growing.

Thrift Proverbs

Time is money, and one should be saved as well as the other.

The time to save money is the morning of life.

The way to make money is to take advantage of every opportunity to earn.

The way to save money is to put it in a bank at interest.

The first dollar deposited in a bank may be the first brick in the new home you've dreamed of.

Money in one's pocket burns a hole and drops through.

Money in a bank earns interest every day in the year.

The secret of making money is the saving of it.

It is not what you earn, but what you save, that makes you rich.

Put your savings in a reliable bank and let it earn interest for you.

By saving something every week you begin each week richer

Live within your means and put something away for the future.

New Post Toasties represent the most appetizing form in which choice, nutritious Indian corn has ever been prepared.

A new patented process which includes rotary toasting under quick, intense heat gives these flakes a delicious new and distinctive flavour.

The New Toasties are featured by the bubbly appearance of the surface of the flakes—due to this new art of toasting which releases the wonderful new and attractive true corn taste.

New Post Toasties are not "chaffy" in the package; and they don't mush down when milk or cream is added like common "corn flakes."

Little Hsu And Anfuites Discountenanced By Coup; May Mean Another Upset

New Cabinet, Free From Japanese Influence, Has Opportunity To Do Big Things—Observer Doubts If Much Change Will Eventuate

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER
(Our Peking Correspondent)

Peking, June 25.—The situation produced by the visit of General Chang Tso-lin and the challenge of the anti-Anfu Tuchuns begins to compose itself in the large. Whatever the detailed settlement may be, one conclusion is certain.

Little Hsu and his Anfu Club have had the wind taken out of their sails.

The complexion of Chinese politics has changed. For a period, at least, it will not be the sport of the Anfu Club.

The concrete result will be, first of all, a Cabinet free from the domination of Little Hsu. Not because of his own superior qualifications or because of his pure Chihli party affiliations, but as a symbol of the struggle, Chin Yun-peng will go back as Premier.

It should be emphasised that he is not of Chihli affiliations. He has always been one of the steadfast lieutenants of Tuan Chi-jui, the leader of the Anhui or anti-Chihli military factions.

UP TO TUAN

Chin's final disposition rests with Tuan Chi-jui, for years Little Hsu's sponsor. Whether he still is and what the relations between Little Hsu and Tuan now are, are points on which much turns.

It is said on good authority that Tuan has decided to throw over Little Hsu.

It is said on equal authority that Little Hsu is quietly betraying Tuan, and that Tuan will find himself shorn of his power—even of his role as "signboard."

On just as good authority is it said that all the talk about a split between the two is deliberately circulated for effect; that it is a red herring across Chang Tso-lin's trail.

CHIN WILL GO BACK

Be that as it may, Chin Yun-peng will go back. He will have, for the first time, freedom in his choice of Cabinet ministers. Who these ministers will be has not yet been determined. That is the most difficult point. It involves the second great symbol of the struggle.

Now, in considering the Cabinet positions, mark just two ministries: Finance and Communications—particularly the latter. He who holds the Ministry of Communications holds the money bags. It is through that ministry the real cash passes—the railway receipts, the post office and telegraph receipts—between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 in all. That is the real prize of government.

TSENG MUST GO

Chang Tso-lin has demanded that Tseng Yu-cheng, the incumbent, get out. Aside from politics, that is a consummation devoutly to be wished. Tseng is nothing more than the Anfu Club treasurer. He has used the ministry for that, besides his own personal designs. He has built up a personal machine, exactly as Shih-yi did in Yuan Shih-k'ai's time.

And Tseng's is the nastiest machine of the three—nastier even than Tsao's. Watch Tseng Yu-chen for the direction to which the wind veers. If he remains, Chang Tso-lin is beaten. But the chances are five to one he won't remain.

Of lesser importance is the Ministry of Finance—but lesser only to the Ministry of Communications.

And that, too, is now held by the Anfuites; and that, too, Chang Tso-lin demands for his party.

BACK TO OLD DAYS

Peking is back to the olden days of mysterious tales of assassinations, plots, poisonings and drumhead court martials. Little Hsu one hears, receives callers with a squad of men standing with fixed bayonets behind his chair.

President Hsu, frightened by whispered threats, has had the guard of his palace changed. Chin Yun-peng has been informed that he may come back as Premier, but that he will not live long.

And over all the walled city is the suspense of uncertainty. Little Hsu is a man of action. A coup of some kind with the one division that is still loyal to him is not impossible, foolhardy though it would prove to be.

DESPERATE TIMES

But it is a time for desperate measures. The whole structure to which he has given four years painstakingly to build is crumbling. And even Tuan has suffered a tremendous loss of face.

For fundamental purposes, what will the whole maneuver mean? In my belief, little or nothing. Another party is temporarily in the ascendant. In no wise is it a better party.

Chang Tso-lin, Tsao Kun, Li Shun and the generals who have aided them are different only by degree. President Hsu, for whom this is a personal victory not to be minimised, is different only by degree.

There will be no more unity than before. These anti-Anfuites who have just emerged victorious, are united only in their opposition to Little Hsu. They are his enemies, not in principle, but in objection to his appropriation of too great a share of the spoils.

SQUABBLE OVER SPOILS

Little Hsu once eliminated, they will all be squabbling over the spoils as have the political victors always. There will be a repetition of exploitation, intrigue, the upgrowth of an opposition, maneuvers and the emergence of yet another victorious and temporary clique.

There remains the issue of Japan. The Anfuites have been Japan's Peking agents. How much has Japan lost? Those who know Chang Tso-lin disagree on his sentiments toward the Japanese.

"At heart," it is said, "he is not pro-Japanese"—a qualification that is eloquent. It used to be made of Little Hsu, too.

"At heart!" Which means that, when the mastery of the Chang Tso-lin party is threatened by internal enemies, it will turn to Tokio for the same support that Tokio gave Little Hsu when he needed to build his machine. And at the same price.

MAY BENEFIT JAPAN

Perhaps it is all to Japan's advantage. It is to Japan's advantage to have the waters muddied. The Anfuites were becoming arrogant and independent. They have been disciplined.

It does not pay for militarists to be too independent of Tokio. Chang Tso-lin will learn that, too, if he proves himself recalcitrant.

Of great interest this whole move may be, and glorious in its retribution for the Anfu gang—but of vital importance to China, of basic benefit to the Chinese people and to the improvement of China's Far Eastern position it is not. It is too near the surface for that.

The real issue remains. The exploiting gang is still on top. Only names have changed. While that gang is on top. China's basic position is the same. There is no call for rejoicing.

ANFU CLUB CONFERS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, June 27.—The President this morning received General Chang Tso-lin, who reported progress in his mediation in the political situation. The President expressed his appreciation of General Chang Tso-lin's services, and the hope that the latter would succeed in inducing Chin Yung-peng to resume the Premiership, before he returned to Mukden.

The three Anfu members of the Cabinet will probably submit their resignations shortly; and, if so, the resignations will be accepted as soon as they are submitted, the vice-ministers acting, pending the appointment of successors.

An informal conference of members of the Anfu Club, held this morning, discussed the future policy of the Club. The majority favored giving way in the matter of the Cabinet Ministers, but was not inclined to permit Wang Yi-tang to be sacrificed. Another meeting was called for Wednesday to discuss Wang Yi-tang's position.

The report is confirmed that General Hsu Shu-tseng left for Urga on Thursday last, abandoning the political purposes for which he returned to Peking.

It is believed that Chow Tze-chi, director of the Currency Bureau, will become Finance Minister in the re-organised Cabinet.

HIATUS COMES

Peking, June 28.—A hiatus has occurred, owing to the forced resignation of the three Anfu Ministers, which formed part of the solution which General Chang Tso-lin is arranging as a preliminary to Chin Yung-peng's return to the Premiership.

Marshal Tuan Chi-jui called on General Chang Tso-lin yesterday and pointed out that such resignations were unnecessary, if Chin Yung-peng did not resume the Premiership, because then the President would be forced to ask another to form a Cabinet, in which case the existing Cabinet would resign en bloc.

The solution of the difficulty, therefore, depends on the decision of Chin Yung-peng to retire or to resume office.

It is understood that, if the resignations are forced General Tseng Yu-chen will be appointed Governor of Fukien, Li Shih-hou Director of the Currency Bureau and Chu Shen to a post which has not yet been decided.

ment uniforms with high boots and gleaming helmets were stationed facing each other with the big nozzels, not unlike machine guns, at the ready.

At a given signal the hissing streams came into play. In the first several minutes it was give and take with both men holding firmly in their places before the swift watery onrush. It was seen then, like a fortunate thrust, that M. Clergue had directed his stream fairly into the face of his opponent whose head snapped back as though from the impact of a heavy blow. M. Numa staggered away blindly before the smashing suffocating torrent with his stream playing in wild arcs, its flying spray drenching the spectators. He rallied finally and crouched grimly into the water that kept relentlessly pounding him until the seconds called time for the end of the first ten minute period.

SECOND PERIOD

After an interval of three minutes the contestants took their places again. M. Numa palpably weakened from the first onslaught then tried the expedient of ducking his head so that the torrent from his opponent struck his helmet.

In this position, though, he was wholly unable to see his adversary who was quick to take advantage of the situation by steadying his aim surely on the down turned helmet. The pressure of the huge column of water swiftly wore down M. Numa's strength. He wavered and staggered back a step and as he did this the protecting helmet was lifted from his head and hurled far away. From this point he was at the mercy of the other who had suffered little or no damage.

Quickly M. Numa was pushed backward ten or fifteen feet into a border of shrubbery and it was here that he went to his knees and then the wild flying nozzle escaped from his clutch. This ended the combat and at its conclusion, after he had revived somewhat, M. Numa walked forward with right hand outstretched to have it quickly grasped by the victor.

This makes a total of 17 killed and 29 wounded in 5 days.

"BOO" COHALON

New York, June 23.—Addressing a crowded meeting of the Irish Progressive League, McCartan, the so-called "Irish Ambassador," declared that Judge Cohalan (American) was the keystone of a conspiracy to force "President" de Valera from the country.

A priest declared that Irish-American politicans had sold the Irish cause for the best price they could get. The audience booed Judge Cohalan.

CHINA DISCUSSED BY JAP PREMIER

Mr. Hara Outlines Program For Debate In Diet, Now In Session

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, June 27.—The leaders of the Seiyukai, Kenseikai and Kokuminto parties addressed mass meetings today, preparatory to the opening of the extraordinary session of the Diet on Tuesday.

Mr. Hara, the Premier, addressing the Seiyukai with reference to pending international questions, said:

"Negotiations are still in progress with regard to the Anglo-Japanese Alliance.

"With regard to Shantung, we have attempted to open negotiations with Peking for the return of Tsingtao, but China has refused to discuss the offer; hence that problem is as yet unsolved.

UNITY PROCLAIMED

"Thanks to the unity between Great Britain, France, America and Japan, the Consortium has materialised, which I believe will go far towards promoting prosperity in China.

"The Government is preparing to deal with the Siberian question along the lines of its oft-repeated declarations.

"It is most deplorable that the Nikolaevsk incident should have occurred. We are forced to grieve over the massacre of all the Japanese, residents, including the Consular staff and the troops, by the Russian Bolsheviks. Of course, the Government will take drastic steps to uphold the prestige of Japan."

LACK OF POLICY

Addressing the Kenseikai, Viscount Kato declared that the lack of a definite Siberian policy was responsible for Nikolaevsk. The Kokuminto likewise denounced the administration. The tenor of the Opposition and manifestoes indicates that the Nikolaevsk incident will be the main issue in the program against the Government at the forthcoming session of the Diet.

MUST REDUCE QUICK

Paris, June 24.—The Journal states that the Allied note which was presented to the German Delegation yesterday recalls that the German army must be reduced to 100,000 before July 10, and the "Security Police" abolished; but allows an increase in the local police from 70,000 to 150,000.

A second note, which has been drawn up by Marshal Foch and Field-Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, according to the journal, demands legislation abolishing conscription in Germany.

"DEMANDS" TIME

Paris, June 26.—A German note was handed in at the Quai d'Orsay yesterday, in which the Berlin Government demands a further extension of the period within which to complete the evacuation of the neutral zone on the right bank of the Rhine, which expires on July 10.

put the price up 50 cents at the beginning of this month. Most shopkeepers depend on these caterers for their daily meals.

Mr. King Sung-sun, a well-to-do merchant in the Settlement, yesterday started a private cheap depot on Tansui Road. His supply however is only 100 piculs. He will sell not more than one-hundredth of a picul to each comer at 10 cents a lot.

Reports of labor associations allege that smuggling of the staple to Japan is still practiced by the profiteers while rice dealers are unwilling to dispose of their stocks in any large quantity because they expect further rise in the price.

Government action in relieving the situation is suggested by most of the local organisations. Several societies met Sunday to discuss the situation. The concensus of opinion is that Peking should at once issue a Presidential Mandate, prohibitting and making profiteering a grave offence and that the local organisations should be on watch to uncover cases of hoarding and profiteering.

MILL STRIKES CONTINUE

The strike at the three Japanese cotton mills in Yangtszepoo is still on. The demand of the strikers for more wages has been ignored by the management while the strikers refuse to yield. The rope makers' strike is also assuming an alarming aspect. A clash between employes and employers resulted in a general outbreak at a Chinese tea shop in Nantao Sunday. Twenty-eight were arrested after the tea shop was half wrecked.

The Federated Street Union yesterday addressed a letter to the Municipal Council urging it to make a thorough investigation as to the actual amount of rice now available in Shanghai and the alleged hoarding among some of the rice dealers. The union has been authoritatively informed, it is stated, that there is only enough for only four days in Shanghai.

The union further expresses the hope that the municipal authorities will devise means of relieving the present critical situation.

A similar letter was addressed to the French Municipal Council.

EDITOR'S SON STARTS RIOT IN CHURCH; KILLED

Decried Dead Officers For Whom Requiem Was Being Sung

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Harbin, June 27.—This morning, during a requiem service for 103 officers, including Colonel Vrashtel, an address was being delivered, extolling the dead, when Cherniavsky, son of the editor of the Novosti Jijni, uttered remarks insulting to the dead officers' memories.

The assembly became furious and appeared ready to tear the offender to pieces.

The militia and some officers attempted to surround Cherniavsky, with a view to handing him over to the military authorities.

Cherniavsky fired at Colonel Meyer, who drew his revolver and shot and killed Cherniavsky.

There was a large crowd present and there are many conflicting reports with regard to further details, which are at present too confused for anything definite to be made of them.

ALL SEMENOFF MEN

Peking, June 28.—The Russian papers here, which published the notice of the requiem service at Harbin, state that the dead for whom the requiem was being sung were all General Semenoff's officers, who were killed by the Bolsheviks during Easter week on the bank of the River Hor, between Vladivostok and Habarovsk.

The requiem service had been arranged by General Semenoff's supporters.

Mr. And Mrs. Elmore Mixed Doubles Champions

Some splendid tennis was witnessed by a large crowd at the Country Club yesterday afternoon when the final of the mixed doubles was played. The pairs were Mr. and Mrs. Elmore and Dr. Marshall and Mrs. Pearson. It is interesting to note that Mrs. Pearson has figured in the finals of all three matches. She won the 'Ladies' Singles' and with Mrs. Murray she won the 'Ladies' Doubles.' It was not Mrs. Pearson's fault that she lost the 'Mixed Doubles' yesterday.

The game started shortly after five o'clock with Mr. and Mrs. Elmore facing the sun. The first game went to the couple just named, but after that Dr. Marshall and Mrs. Pearson took the next three games. Then came a game for the Elmore's, another for their opponents, and the last four went to the Elmores again. This gave the first set to the Elmore's by 6 games to 4.

Set two found the leaders again on the offensive, and games one and two went to them. The next two were claimed by the other side, and after some wonderfully fine play the set ended in favor of Dr. Marshall and Mrs. Pearson by seven games to five.

LOVE SET DECIDES

Interest in the last and deciding set ran high, but it proved the most disappointing of the trio. Dr. Marshall proved the weak member, and brilliant play on the part of the Elmores gave them a love set and the championship.

A study in the methods of the pairs was interesting. The winners, when Mr. Elmore was serving, stood well back behind the line, and when Mrs. Elmore was delivering the ball her husband was well up to the net and put in some grand work there.

Dr. Marshall and Mrs. Pearson generally worked in parallel lines, and were either both well up or both well back. Elmore worried the combination a good deal. At times he would have them buzzing about in the center of the court, and then with a finely placed ball to the side lines win his point.

At other times he would scatter the pair and nicely steer the ball well between them. It was his generalship that won the match. He was undoubtedly the pick of the quartet. Whether he was driving from the back lines or smashing near to the net, whether he was serving at top speed or lobbing over the heads of his opponents he was always the prominent player in the picture. He was brilliant and well deserved both the applause and the cup he received. Mrs. Elmore played with a perfect understanding of her partner's methods and proved effective again and again with some really splendid lobbing from the back of the court.

PLAYS GREAT GAME

For the losers Mrs. Pearson played a great game. She was strong from start to finish and was able to gain point after point by her power of driving and her genius in placing. She has a good service. She was in fine form and the strokes that were lost to her she cannot be blamed for. Dr. Marshall was like the curate's egg that is good in parts. Every now and again he would absolutely shine as brilliantly as the sun did. He was seen to especial advantage in the second set when by sheer hard work he and his partner claimed the set. The last venture however saw him weak, in fact very weak. And no one knows this better than the doctor himself.

Altogether it was a grand contest and one that will be remembered for many a long day by the large number of spectators who witnessed it. At the conclusion of the match Judge Skinner Turner gave away the cups in his own cheery style. He was overheard to say "Here you are Mrs Elmore, take this cup and congratulations upon a very good game."

Herewith the run of the games:

Sports Correspondence

Sports Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir.—I was very much surprised to see in your Sport Section of Sunday, June 27, the heading "Bolsheviki are given trimming—Ardor of insurgents chilled" and in the first paragraph you say that the Bolsheviki with the assistance of two or three regulars tried to make good on their "eat 'em alive" stuff, and then farther on "meekly submitted to an artistic trimming handed out by the Shanghai first string men."

Your correspondent has absolutely no regard for the truth. The facts are these:

When the time for the game came on Saturday afternoon, there were 7 members of the Bolsheviki Baseball Team at hand and only 4 of the regulars. Under such conditions, it was entirely impossible to play the regularly scheduled game. The 11 men were then divided, as nearly as possible, evenly, and the vacant place filled in by the Chinese boys. On the so called "regular team," according to your article, there were 2 Regulars, Mr. Wilhoit and Mr. Gill and 4 Bolsheviki, Rugh, Held, Merrill and Pung.

Personally, I am very sorry that you allowed an article of this sort to appear in your paper, that gives the impression to the Shanghai fans that the team I have endeavored to get together are a misfit aggregation and are easily vanquished by the so-called Regulars. When another game is to be played the fans will naturally think that the Bolsheviki are no match for the Regulars and will not care to turn out to the game.

I trust you will pardon me when I suggest that you ask your correspondent to report facts as they occur on the baseball field, and cut out writing fiction.

Yours truly,
H. L. Tinkham.

Joyriding Is Accusation Against Boys For Taking Bicycles From Roadways

Hundreds Of Machines Disappear For Time But Are Recovered From Hiding Place, Declare Police In Charge Made Against Two Youths

After having set the entire police force by its heels for months by their mischievous pranks, illegal as theft but looked upon by the men who have been on their trail more as an annoyance than as crime, two young Chinese are in custody today on a charge of having stolen several hundred bicycles here recently. Their case was called before the Mixed Court yesterday and remanded, at the request of Sergeant Pelling of the Singa police, for one week.

There is an interesting tale in connection with the bicycle snatching situation in the Settlement. When the first reports of bicycle thefts came into the detective department a few months ago the operatives got into action on the theory that the wheels were being taken for the purpose of sale.

But, to their intense surprise, one after another of the machines was found in alleyways and out of the way places where they had evidently been abandoned by the thieves.

Detective J. J. Kilkenny of the Central Division started out on the case and quickly came to the conclusion that the police were being "spoofed" by youths. He set several traps for the bicycle thieves, who, having successfully made away with more than 200 machines, grew very bold. In four instances one or another of the culprits was almost within the grasp of the law.

In one of these cases a Chinese rode up to a curb on the Bund and parked his wheel for a moment while he stepped into a shop. As he was coming out he saw a young Chinese riding away on his bicycle. Setting up a cry of thief the man started a pursuit and was joined by others, including police constables, and the chase, which was worthy of the motion picture screen, proceeded cross the Garden Bridge, down North Soochow and Woosung Roads and, finally, the furiously pedalling youth escaped down an alleyway.

The bicycle was recovered. And that has been the case in practically very instance of bicycle snatching in the recent episodes. It appears to the police that the youths are obsessed with the idea of taking a wheel in one part of the Settlement, riding it to another part or to Frenchtown or the Chinese City, abandoning it at their destination, stealing another bicycle and going elsewhere.

Bicycles reported as stolen have been found in alleyways, vacant lots, on grave mounds, under buildings and in every conceivable place but of all the many that have been snatched probably less than 20 have not been recovered. The police detectives believe those now missing are not attributable to the original thieves but to others who have found them in alleyways or other out-of-the-way places.

Shanghai College Holds Commencement Exercises

Twelve Get Certificates Of Graduation, Nine Get Degrees—School To Admit Women

Last Saturday Shanghai College had the most enthusiastic Commencement in her history.

At ten in the morning the graduates of the College gave their class day program consisting of both usual and unusual features such as the class history, class prophecy, orations and songs.

The class presented the College with a lofty flagpole erected on the river front which will be a land-mark for incoming ships.

At two in the afternoon the annual military review occurred. The students acquitting themselves with great praise.

EXERCISES IN AFTERNOON

At three occurred the regular Commencement exercises. The faculty and graduates in caps, gowns and hoods with members of the Board of Managers and distinguished guests formed the procession in front of Evanston hall and marched to the College chapel to the strains of Hadyn's stately Processional. On reaching the platfrom the words "God of Majesty and Glory," composed by President White were sung."

At the close "The Alma Mater," composed by Prof. Kulp, was sung with great enthusiasm. Two piano selections were rendered by students of McTyeire School, Miss Yui Tsz Lien and Miss Gertrude Chur, and Miss Myra Olive, also of McTyire School, gave a wonderful rendering of "Jewels of the Night" and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Boice."

COMMISSIONER THERE

The Commissioner of Foreign Affairs, graced the occasion with his presence and spoke to the graduating class. The principal address was delivered by Mr. Paul Hutchinson on the subject "The Educated Man and the Service of the Truth." It would be impossible without printing the whole address to give an adequate idea of its value.

President White made several announcements regarding the progress of the College. He announced that on the completion of the new Academy building the Academy would be separated in its administration from the College. He announced that the work on the New Science Hall would be pushed during the coming year. So soon as this building is completed greater facilities will be had for the new courses leading to the degree of B. S. such as pre-medical, science, teachers' course, pre-engineering and especially the industrial chemistry course.

Contracts have been let for the installation of the water plant and the electric lighting plant.

TEACHERS COMING

A large number of new teachers are expected to arrive from America next year including Prof. C. H. Westbrook who will secure his Ph. D. in education at Harvard. The College will have four Americans in its department of education when Prof. Westbrook arrives.

President White spoke of the presence of Dr. Harris H. Wilder and Mrs. Wilder of the department of biology of Smith and the splendid help they have rendered the College in teaching and lecturing.

President White announced that plans were maturing for the establishment of a department of commerce and business. This department has long been needed since such a large number of the student body is looking forward to business careers.

President White announced tha' the College plans to open its doors to women in September of 1921 and has elected Miss Catherine Bryan to the faculty in pursuance of this plan. Already a large number of applications for entrance have been received which shows the need for the establishment of this department.

REGULARS WIN ONE-SIDED GAME

Internationals Are Smothered Under Barrage Of Hard Hitting

The long deferred game between the regulars and the much touted International ball team was played before a fair sized crowd Sunday afternoon, with a lopsided score of 21 to 0 to reward the watchers. Needless to say the new club was smothered to an accompaniment of singles, doubles and triples with an occasional home run thrown in to make things interesting.

Manager Naftaly of the Internationals, who was very much in the lime light during the game, claims his outfit would have made a much better showing, if Terry of the Andersen and Meyer team had shown up to do the heaving as he had promised. Irrespective of that, however, the newcomers had no chance, being outclassed in every department of the game. They are to be commended for their efforts in going out so gamely and giving the best they had.

With the Shanghai gang belting the ball to the four corners of the lot and holding the Internationals runless, Naftaly's hopefuls never gave up until the last out was made. They certainly had the proper spirit even if the flesh was weak. The home players did not show at their best in Sunday's game due to the lack of practice. With the coming of clear weather the team will start in on intensive work in preparation for the Glee Club series. Signal drills will be held and no doubt after practice every day, Chief Musical Director Tommy Holman will regale the tired players with songs by his quartet. News that will cause joy in the hearts of the faithful is that a series was arranged yesterday with the team from the U.S.S. Elliott, newly arrived in the harbor. There will be three games played, beginning Saturday, July third and finishing up on Monday, July fifth.

Lieutenant Lee, the Athletic Officer of the ship says he has a fast fighting team and Shanghai had better be in the best of shape if they expect any laurel wreath to crown their brows, high, low and otherwise. It looks like a hot series and it is hoped that the fans will be out and support their favorites. "Cap" Bills says his men will be out for a stiff practice every day so that the moss grown alibi, lack of condition, will not hold good in this case.

The rejuvenated Bolsheviki, headed by Chief Bomb Thrower Tinkham, will endeavor to wipe out the regulars next Thursday afternoon at the Race Course. "Tink" claims that his regular line up was not on hand at the last game with the Shanghai team. He claims no less than six of his long whiskered followers were out throwing grenades in Pootung. He promises that they will "sure be there" Thursday.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

Never give a baby a sleeping draught, a soothing mixture, or an opiate of any kind whatever, except by the order of a competent doctor who has seen the child. All these things are poison, and they are moreover utterly needless, while the sleep they give is unhealthy, unnatural and injurious.

In Baby's Own Tablets there is not one atom of "sleeping stuff." Yet by their beneficial, healthy action they give refreshing sleep, sleep from which the child awakens bright and well.

Mrs. George Foote, of St. Thomas, Ontario, Canada, writes:—"My baby was troubled with diarrhoea, was very restless and cross, and got but very little sleep. I hardly knew what to do with her. I got a bottle of Baby's Owo Tablets and after using them she could sleep well and her bowels became regular. I am much pleased with the Tablets and think them a fine medicine."

Baby's Own Tablets, the Canadian children's remedy, are obtainable from chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

"I'se gettin all de pleasure ob fishin' 'cept de fish," said the old darky who was told there were no fish in the puddle in which he was angling.

So with many business men. They are getting everything except the business. They are overlooking printing, the medium first at hand for increasing the sale of their products. They are not devoting the serious attention they should to the mailing list and to their direct advertising. They are ignoring the most effective and most economical form of advertising for nearly every business. It builds up prestige, establishes trade names, and begets confidence. It gets new dealers, livens up inactive ones and keeps those you have keyed up to the highest selling pitch. It sells goods! Why not use this tremendous force—this powerful "puller for profits."

Bui ding your catalogue, getting out a new booklet, planning a direct advertising campaign or testing out a new territory—such important work should not be left to routine handling. In The U. S. Court For China

Fearon, Daniel and Co., Inc.,
Plaintiff,
vs.
Robert Festus Hall,
Defendant.
Cause No. 945.
Civil No. 321.
JUDGMENT
Filed Tientsin, June 26, 1920.

SYLLABUS

1. Contracts: Employment: Restrictions as to Time. The contract of employment by which the employe undertakes not to "engage in or enter the employ of another party in China. . . . in the capacity of a technical paint man" for a period of three years from the expiration of the contract is not unreasonable as to time.

2. Restrictions as to Place. Where the employe has offices in various parts of China and conducts a mail order business in many other portions and, as the testimony shows, transacts 75 percent of the paint business in the country, the restriction as to place is also not unreasonable.

Messrs. Fleming, Davies and Bryan by Mr. Bryan for Plaintiff.
Edgar Pierce Allen, Esq., for Defendant.

LOBINGIER, J.:

On May 15, 1918, the parties to this cause entered into a written contract by which plaintiff employed defendant for a term of three years in the capacity "of a technical paint man for the furtherance of their paint business in China" defendant undertaking thereby that he would

"not at the expiration of this contract, and for a period of three years thereafter engage in or enter the employ of another party in China in the same capacity."

In February, 1920, defendant left plaintiff's employ and became the manager of a new concern in Tientsin known as the "American Paint and Product Company," a statement of whose purposes, which defendant admits was practically as he gave it, appeared in a Tientsin newspaper to the effect that

"the new Company would give most of its time to paints, in the ways of general sales, and to make a specialty of painting and decorating, while later on they would do a general import and export business."

Defendant also admits that in this connection he purchased paint and sought contracts for painting. On March 4, 1920, plaintiff filed a complaint herein praying for an injunction to prevent defendant "from in any way engaging in or entering into a paint business in China," application having been made for a restraining order on defendant on April 19, signed and undertaking "to restrain from engaging in the paint business in any form pending the final hearing of this cause;" whereupon the same was continued until the regular session at Tientsin.

The facts being thus indicated the sole question is whether plaintiff is entitled, as a matter of law, to the ruling sought. The prohibition of entering into other employment, as we have seen is for a limited time, is three years after the expiration of the contract. As the plaintiff alleges that defendant left its employ on or about February 1, 1920, and as there is no averment or evidence of any opposition on the plaintiff's part to such a course, it is fair to assume that the employment was terminated by mutual consent and the three year period above mentioned would consequently run from February 1, 1920. The prohibition of this limit in time is free from the objections which led to the denial of a permanent injunction in the leading case decided by this Court. Moreover in that case the evidence disclosed that complainant had but one plant in China and that at Hankow, whereas in the case at bar it appears that plaintiff has no less than six offices in China, that it operates the paint business in those and other offices and transacts, according to the testimony, 75 percent of all paint business in China including sales to missionaries in various parts and extensive contracts like the painting of signs for the British American Tobacco Company. It is clear therefore that the observations in the case last cited as to the unreasonableness of a restriction applying to all of China are not applicable here and that plaintiff has made a showing of need for protection in its business which was wholly wanting in the other case. The facts here, indeed, are much more nearly parallel to a recent decision of the Court in which such an injunction was granted, for while there the order applied to "any place in China where the said company has or may have a branch of its business" it really operated in Shanghai alone since the testimony showed that no branch had then been established elsewhere.

Under the evidence in this cause we must find that the restrictions of the contract as regard both time and place are not unreasonable and that plaintiff is consequently entitled to the enforcement thereof.

Defendant is accordingly enjoined from engaging or entering the employ of another party in China in the capacity of a technical paint man for three years from February 1, 1920, and is further adjudged to pay the costs of this proceeding.

BY THE COURT.

Plaintiff,

ORDER
Filed June 25, 1920.
Deputy Clerk.

SYLLABUS

Contracts: Formation. An acceptance subject to the approval of the acceptor's principal does not become effective until such approval is obtained.

Fleming, Davies and Bryan, by Mr. Bryan for the Demurrer.
Edgar Pierce Allen, Esq., Contra.

A demurred is here interposed to a petition seeking recovery on a series of instruments which were executed by the defendant, addressed to plaintiff's alleged representative, relating to the purchase of "strapping hoop iron" and reciting as follows:

"We hereby confirm transaction consummated with you today covering your purchase of the following, subject to the conditions stated on the back hereof and acceptance at Seattle office."

It appears from a copy of a letter from defendants' Tientsin manager attached as an exhibit to the petition, and forming a part thereof, that

"on December 9 our Shanghai office received a cablegram from our head office advising that they should not accept those contracts."

This letter appears to have been written on March 12, in reply to one of the previous day from plaintiff and the former letter further recites that

"The contents of this cablegram were made known to Mr. Murray and as at that time you were the head of the Compradore Department of J. M. Murray and Company, we considered the notification of the manager of said company sufficient notice of the non-acceptance of these contracts."

The instruments first above referred to were executed, with one exception, on November 19, and it would appear from the whole petition, including the exhibits that as soon as these instruments had reached the Seattle office by mail it sent the cable referred to.

Plaintiff's counsel contends that by failure to notify plaintiff earlier, of the non-acceptance, defendant actually effected an acceptance which consumated a contract in each instance and that the clause requiring "acceptance at Seattle office" was thereby nullified. But the instruments of November 19 purport to be nothing more than "confirmations" i.e., acceptances of offers previously made and in order that a contract may result the acceptance must be non-conditional. As stated by an eminent authority

"Acceptance therefore must be absolute.

A proposed to sell a property to X; X accepted "subject to the terms of a contract being arranged" between his solicitor and A's. Here it was held that there was no agreement, for the acceptance was not final but subject to a discussion to take place between the agents of the parties."

As each one of these instruments was "subject to acceptance at Seattle office" it would seem to follow that no agreement could result at least until such acceptance was obtained. We do not think it can be successfully contended that the instruments themselves are offers. They do not purport to be such in any sense; but if they were we do not see that the rights of the parties would be changed; for if plaintiff accepted them as offers he would be obliged to do so subject to identical conditions and the result would be the same.

The authority cited by plaintiff's counsel to the effect that unreasonable delay on the part of a purchaser in returning goods might imply an acceptance, relates to an executed contract and is not in point where the question is whether a contract was ever effected. Another authority to the effect that a principals delay of twelve days in passing on an order after submission to him constituted an acceptance appears not only to be inconsistent with the authorities first above cited but also not in point here since it does not appear that the Seattle office delayed answer unduly after receiving the order in question.

On the whole the facts recited in the petition with its exhibits fail to disclose a completed contract between the parties and the demurrer is accordingly sustained.

BY THE COURT.

DISCUSS MANDATE IN MESOPOTAMIA

Britain Anticipates Work Of Maintaining Peace In Asia Minor

(Reuter's Service)

Bagdad, June 23.—An official statement, issued here, says that the Imperial Government anticipates that the British mandate for Mesopotamia will lay upon it the responsibility for the maintenance of internal peace and external security and require them to formulate an organic law, framed in consultation with the people of Mesopotamia with due regard to the rights, wishes and interests of all communities.

The mandate, it is anticipated, will contain provisions to facilitate the development of Mesopotamia as a self-governing State until it is able to stand for itself when the mandate will end.

Major-General Sir Percy Cox, political resident in the Persian Gulf, who will be entrusted with the inception of the task, will be authorised to call into being as provisional bodies, a Council of State under an Arab President and a General Elective Assembly, freely elected by the population of Mesopotamia.

SIBERIA VOTES TO DISCONTINUE INTERNAL WARS

Returned Russians Tell Of Dread "Hunghutse," Now Ravishing The North

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, June 27.—The National Assembly, at its third meeting today, passed a resolution to discontinue civil war.

In view of international circumstances, it was decided that it would be necessary to form an independent State, which would be politically and economically in close touch with the rest of Russia.

Its economic policy would be the development of its resources on democratic lines, utilising capitalistic processes. In aiming at attaining the above end, the working classes should have protection and also should give just consideration to the interests of others.

The foreign policy of the State would be the establishment of friendly relations neighboring countries.

The Assembly showed itself in agreement with the policy as stated in the resolution and is now commencing routine work.

M. Vilenski today presented his credentials, on the strength of which the Ministry of Foreign Affairs recognises him as the representative of the Soviet.

NEW CRUELTIES

(Russia News Agency)

Russians arriving in Shanghai from Vladivostok tell of a new Japanese provocative method for terrorising the Russian population in the Maritime Province. This is the use of the "Hunghutse," or Chinese highwaymen.

The Hunghutse bands have started to operate on quite a large scale along the Ussuri Railway and even near Vladivostok, making sudden attacks on villages in Ussurick County, Iman, Spassk, Ugolnaya and Olga County.

They are acting in groups of about 150 to 200 men each, and are well equipped with Japanese rifles and even machine-guns.

CANNOT HELP

The remainder of the Russian People's Army, according to the peace treaty of April 29, which the Vladivostok Government was compelled by the Japanese Military Command to sign, has no right to approach the railway or the Japanese military posts within a distance of thirty miles; so the population can expect no help from them against the Hunghutse.

The only help possible is from the Russian militia; but the number of that body is so small that an average of only one or two militiamen can be sent to protect a village against groups of 150 or 200 bandits, all well equipped.

The Zemstvo Government is allowed by the Japanese military command to employ, in the whole territory of the maritime Province, only 1,000 militiamen. Regardless of the Government's requests to permit an increase of the militia, the Japanese consistently refuse.

TERRIBLE SITUATION

With the Hunghutse menace the population is in a really awful state. The bandits suddenly attack and rob the people and put heavy burdens of taxation or ransom on them.

In some places the peasants have armed themselves and driven the bandits from the villages; But, according to the agreement of the 29th of April, the peasants have no right to keep any kind of armament.

Therefore, when they take up arms in order to protect themselves, this is used by the Japanese as a pretext to come into the village, make searches, punish the people and remain there.

This is realised by the entire population; and the peasants consequently, would rather desolate their villages and flee than to take up arms and by that act, to give the Japanese their desired pretext for occupation.

JAPANESE ABETTING

The general opinion of the Russians in the Maritime Province is that the Japanese military command is protecting, equipping and stimulating the Hunghutses to make their raids, in order either to compel the Russian population to ask for Japanese protection (and so give the Japanese its own consent to come deeply into the province) or to force the people to arm themselves, in consequence of which the Japanese will openly occupy those places because of the breaking of the peace agreement.

The Hunghutse affair, just as the Botchkareff affair, are elements of the cunning plan drawn by the Japanese Military Command for the purposes of occupation.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD FARRIER, M. D.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a pure and reliable medicine for infants and children, in fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Health, Beauty And The Home

Ready for Canning?

By Mrs. Christine Frederick,

The Distinguished Authority on Household Efficiency.

THERE is some old proverb about "forewarned is forearmed." This might well apply to the housewife who considers canning as part of her Summer routine. To all appearances now, at least, sugar will be scarce and high; glass also will be high—but then what is not high to-day? In spite of prices either of foods or canning materials, the housewife should definitely decide on doing some amount of home canning.

In any section where food products may be secured reasonably low at the height of the season, it is economy to can foods at home. For example, in many sections string beans can be obtained for 10 cents or less a quart, tomatoes for 50 cents a half bushel basket, and peaches and other fruits at correspondingly low prices. When this is possible it has been proved in every case that to pack such foods at home is an economy.

One can prove this instantly by comparing a quart of home-packed string beans with any "can" of commercial make. The home-packed product will contain almost double, or even more than the commercial can. If, for example, it cost about 13 cents, including product and fuel to pack a full quart of string beans at home, we would have to pay about 35 cents for an equivalent amount of commercially packed string beans; here we have a clear gain of 22 cents in favor of the housewife.

Many women feel that canning is a great deal of labor. However, modern canning after the "cold packed" method is neither laborious nor exhausting. There is no standing over an open steaming kettle; the foods are packed cold into jars and put into a sterilizer. While they are sterilizing the woman need not even be in the kitchen if she keeps accurate note of her clock and the time.

Also it is not necessary to can such a huge quantity at one time. For the ordinary housewife, it is, indeed, much more efficient to put up a few jars at a time rather than to do the job wholesale. That is, if berries are cheap to-day, buy a dozen or so boxes and put them up in the early part of a forenoon.

The modern steam cooker is the simplest, least fussy canning device to use. This consists of a small square box with a water tank at the base and fitted with two adjustable shelves. All that is necessary is to fill the lower compartment with water, let it come to a boil and then put in the jars. Count time from the moment the water in the jars begins to boil.

An accurate time card for all canning may be secured by writing to the Department of Agriculture or to the Boys' and Girls' Canning Club Bureau, Department of Extension Work, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Every housewife should possess one of these simple, practical guides to successful canning.

In buying new jars, do not buy the type on which the top part is metal with a rubber composition around the edge. Such a jar can be used only once and is too expensive to replace. The best type is that in which there is a wire spring and a glass top. This requires only a new rubber each season. Such jars come not only in pint and quart sizes, but also in three-quart size, which is very convenient for canning corn on the cob.

The woman who puts up her own food should look at it from the business point of view. She should take out in the Summer from her food allowance money with which to buy food products and canning materials, and then, when Fall and Winter comes, she should credit the amount she saves by having home-packed foods against the food allowance for the Winter months.

For example, suppose it cost her 15 cents to home pack a quart jar of peaches. Suppose it costs 40 cents to purchase a commercial "can" of peaches large enough to serve the same number of persons. Let us say that she uses her home-packed jar of peaches in December. Now the way to look at it from the business point of view is that when she takes this jar of peaches off her shelf in December she is really saving 25 cents on her December food bill. If she had bought this product it would have cost her 40 cents out of her food allowance, but since she put it up herself in the Summer at a cost of 15 cents, she is really saving one-quarter of a dollar on her Winter food budget.

This is the attitude which she should take toward all of her canning. Above all things canning should not be looked upon as a luxury or something to be done only by those women who prefer this kind of work. It is a straight business proposition—the woman who puts up food products in Summer, when they cost the least, is making a definite saving on her Winter food bills.

The way to compare the saving between home-packed and commercially packed foods is to compare the number of portions they contain. How many people does the home-packed jar serve? What would have to be paid for a can of commercially packed in order to serve the same number of persons? This is the real comparison. Also the housekeeper may go further and estimate what it would cost to serve the same number of persons in Winter with the same kind of fresh or dried fruits or vegetables.

The fact that sugar may be scarce and high should not deter the housewife from canning at home, because very many products can be put up without any sugar at all. As a matter of fact, I have not tasted in three years a commercial can of food that I felt sure was put up with sugar. Most syrups for commercial products are made with glucose, and if the canner can use this sweetening, so can the housewife.

Also, it is possible to accustom one's taste to a less sweet syrup on many fruits. Others can be put up without any sweetening and the necessary amount of sweetening added when the jar is opened and when, possibly, the supply will be greater. And all vegetables are put up without sugar, so that this excuse does not hold here.

The housewife who each year looks upon canning as a definite part of the Summer's work is really making a household investment. Each year she will require only a few more jars and new rubbers, and thus the expenses of canning equipment will be less and less.

Often I hear the argument that "the woman's time should be valued." But is it valued in other kinds of housework? When a woman cleans a room do we value her time and say "How much does it cost to clean a room?" Or when she takes an hour or more to shop for a can of commercial goods do we value her time and add it to the cost of the product? No, indeed! If we have a certain amount of time to be given to housework, there is no reason why some of this time should not be given to canning as well as to washing dishes, sewing or anything else.

Before any woman can convince me that her time is too valuable to be given to home canning, she will have to convince me that her time is too valuable to be spent in useless shopping!

Again let me urge the housewife to consider canning on this business basis. To-day all "guess work" is removed from canning; it is a science. It is also a business. Let the housekeeper figure with pencil and paper what she now pays for string beans, peaches, etc., packed in the commercial way. Then let her most fairly figure the cost of these products when put up at home. See if there isn't a very definite saving in the home packed jar.

"Save Food" is as necessary a slogan this Summer of 1920 as during any other, but we especially need to "Save Our Pocketbook"—and the home canner of common food products will do this in a very efficient, practical way.

Lina Cavalieri, the Famous Beauty.

Hints for Brunettes

By Lina Cavalieri,

The Most Famous Living Beauty.

If you are a brunette your glory is your eyes, your menace is your liver, and your besetting fault is a lack of cheerfulness. Your tempermental tendency is toward "the blues." Therefore you must correct your brown view of life by some sort of exercise and diet that goads the liver into activity.

As to your eyes first. Their color is in itself a guarantee of beauty. There is no shade of brown eyes that is not beautiful, beginning with the golden brown eyes, which the novelists delight to describe as tawny, but which I have named tiger color, through the red brown shades—that to some imaginative ones suggest cruelty, to myself, the brownish red shades of claret—to the so-called "black" eyes. But place a bit of velvet beside the darkest eyes you ever saw and note how brown the eyes look beside them.

They run the gamut of beauty. Brown eyes, a great beauty expert has declared, are the loviest eyes in the world. Certainly they are the eyes of sentiment, and depth of sentiment and feeling are highly valued the world over.

I have read somewhere that brown eyes ask for love and get it. That is certainly a pretty saying, anyway, however much of truth there is in it. The eyes of the brunette should shine starlike out of a creamy white face as the stars peep through the breaks in a cloud.

The eyes, then, being her glory, the wise brunette takes the best possible care of them. To care well for them she should look out for their surroundings. Eyes are of diminished loveliness indeed if the eyelashes and eyebrows be ill kept. The eyelashes should be thick and soft as silk. They should also be long, and their loveliness is still greater if they happen to be curly. To keep them in best condition there should be no eye-strain.

Reading by a bad light reading on a moving vehicle, reading in bed, looking at too great distances, or looking too continuously at too bright objects in the sunlight—as at an unshaded lake at high noon or a bit of glass in a high light continuing at any task after the muscles of the eyes ache, cause eye-strain, and eye-strain causes inflammation of the eye itself, of the linings of the eyelids and of the rims of the eyelids.

Whatever inflames the lining of the eyes inflames the edges of the lids, and from inflamed eyelids the eyelashes fall with alarming swiftness.

Buy a tiny brush made for the eyebrows and the eyelashes. Use it faithfully every morning and every evening. Brush the eyelashes lightly with a downward stroke to make them long, upward to make them curly. Both serve the chief purpose in the culture of the eyelashes, which is to keep them clean. You are most careful to keep your velvet gown free from dust. Be careful, also, of your eyelashes, which are more vitally important to your beauty. Train the eyebrows to a high arch. The face is more piquant if the eyebrows are high.

The brunette, even more than the blonde, should develop by every proper means the brilliancy of her eyes, for while the brunette's chief glory is her eyes, that of the blonde is her hair.

Therefore, the brunette should, besides taking all the rest her eyes need—even more than she needs, so she will be sure to have enough—use cooling lotions. The boracic acid water which so many use I forbid to the brunette because it leaves a sediment which sometimes clings to the lashes and shows white as hoar frost on the dark lashes. But for her there is the refreshing eye-bath of cool, weak tea, or of this applied, fairly warm: Rose water, 1 gill; witch hazel, 1 gill.

If the eyes ache persistently retire to a darkened room, lie down and place upon the eyes some cool tea leaves, secured there by the useful eye-bandage, or a soft handkerchief of the size used by a man.

If crow's feet appear prematurely about the eyes she should apply lanolin, patting it in thoroughly. Lanolin is the base of most of the skin foods and has no equal, to my present knowledge, as a builder of flesh tissues.

The blonde's complexion fades early because her skin is so extraordinarily thin and fine. The brunette's, as a rule, is the reverse. A fine almond meal is a good substitute for soap for the brunette's complexion. But, as a rule, the brunette, because her skin is thicker, has a tendency to an oily appearance, so she cannot with benefit omit the use of soap entirely.

The Irish Crisis

NOT in modern times has the position of Ireland occupied so prominent a place in the mind of the world as it does today. The crisis is the most serious and sanguinary that has been faced by this generation of Irishmen. And in the last few days it has been made more difficult and complex by the developments in the Labor Conference at Scarborough and by what, apparently, is a schism in the ranks of the Irish-Americans.

Coming on the eve of the Democratic National Convention the Irish split in America may play havoc with their hopes of forcing a plank into the Democratic platform which would commit the Democratic Party to recognition of the Irish Republic. The Irish-Americans tried to get such a plank through the Republican Convention but failed. De Valera admitted that $25,000 of the fund collected in America to further the cause of Ireland's freedom had been expended in sending a delegation to Chicago to fight for such a plank. Probably an even larger sum has been set aside for the payment of workers at the Democratic Convention. The effect of the use of this money in purely American politics probably will be diverse to the Irish cause in America as the money was not subscribed for that purpose and probably a large section of the Irish-Americans themselves will resent the employment of the money in that way.

The movement to have De Valera deported probably will be strengthened by his admissions. Anyway, the open fight that has started among the Irish-Americans themselves will hurt their chances at the San Francisco convention.

De Valera's presence in America as the active agent of the Irish Republic has been the subject of much unfavorable comment in a considerable section of the press of Great Britain and this has found some echo in the United States. For the most part, however, the press of America has made De Valera welcome and has voiced no objection to his activities. If the Irish-American mayor of New York wished to offer an official welcome to the President of the Irish Republic and give him the keys of the city well and good. Who was there to stop him? If Americans of Irish descent wished to give him money with which to work for the freedom of Ireland who was there to stop them? Use of the money to sway American political feeling comes under another head.

As to the action of the Labor Conference at Scarborough, opinions will differ, but in the present state of feeling throughout the British Isles, we doubt if it will be helpful in the long run to the cause of Ireland's freedom. Many British subjects not actively affiliated with Labor have been voting with the Labor Party and as a result that party has been gaining strength recently. Such resolutions as this, especially when read along with the resolutions on India and Egypt, will alienate these voters, and probably divide the Labor Party itself for we do not think that the working classes of Great Britain are yet ready to launch themselves in a campaign the object of which is to break up the British Empire. The Labor Party, we think, has merely hurt itself.

Gov. Frazier's Own Story Of Non-Partisan League

North Dakota Executive, Twice Elected By Farmers In 'Anti-Capitalist' Movement, Describes Benefits And Economies Derived From New Form Of Government

BY LYNN J. FRAZIER

N North Dakota we have had co-operative organisations for a number of years. We have more co-operative farmers' elevators in North Dakota than in any other State. They have been quite successful because so many of them have been organised and because wheat raising has been the principal industry of the North Dakota farmers.

The co-operative elevators acted as agencies to buy the wheat from the farmers. We found that it was necessary to have a selling agency as well as a buying agency, and the Equity Co-operative Exchange was organised, which was to establish a selling agency at the Minnesota terminal.

The Minneapolis Board of Trade refused to sell our co-operative organisation a membership. Therefore, an independent selling agency was established at St. Paul. We had a hard time getting successfully started because of the opposition of the grain combines of the Twin Cities. Even after we got going and began to make a little money suit was brought against this farmers' co-operative selling agency, instituted by the members of the Board of Trade at Minneapolis and brought by the Attorney General in the name of the State of North Dakota, in an effort to put this farmers' organisation out of business, to have a receiver appointed, asserting that the Equity Co-operative Exchange was bankrupt.

The case was tried in the District Court at Fargo, but owing to the interest of the farmers, who attended the trial in large numbers and packed the court room at every session during the hearing, the case was won for the farmers' organisation. But it cost a great deal of money and hindered the work of this selling agency. It also proved to the farmers that if they were to succeed with their co-operative organisation they must go into politics and enact laws for the benefit and protection of the co-operative movements.

After the people of the State had voted for State-owned elevators at two general elections our State Legislature refused to enact the necessary law to carry out the wishes of the majority. It was then that the farmers organised what was known as the Non-Partisan League and in the 1918 election gained control of the State administration and our State Legislature enacted into law practically the whole program of the farmers' organisation, which included State-owned terminal elevators and flour mills, a rural credit bank to be operated at cost, State hail insurance at cost, the exemption of farmers' improvements from taxation and a fair and just grain grading act.

The Bank of North Dakota has saved 2½ percent on the interest rate for first mortgage real estate loans to the farmers, and up to date has made a saving of at least $50,000.

The State hail insurance law, which operated during the season of 1919, made a saving, according to the report of the State Insurance Commissioner, of $5,400,000.

Dr. E. F. Ladd, President of the North Dakota Agricultural College, has estimated that the Grain Grading act has saved for the farmers of North Dakota $10,000,000 or $12,000,000.

The State Bonding act, which bonds all public officials, has made a saving of at least $60,000.

State insurance on public buildings has made a saving of over $30,000.

The Mill and Elevator Association, through the purchase of a 125-barrel mill, which has been in operation since last August, also has been a great saving to farmers selling their wheat there and to those who purchased the flour and mill feed.

This mill paid on an average 12 cents per bushel more than the other elevators and mills in the State, and at the same time sold the flour at 50 cents per barrel less than the other mills sold flour of the same grade. It also sold the mill feed at an average of $7.50 per ton less than what the other mills sold it for. It is safe to say that at the present rate it will have saved at least $40,000 by the end of the first year's operation.

A 3,000-barrel mill and a 1,500,000-bushel elevator is now in the course of construction at Grand Forks. This mill will handle over 4,000,000 bushels of wheat per year. At the same rate that the smaller mill is giving, it will save at least $1,000,000 to the producers and consumers of the State each year.

Summing these savings all up, it is very easy to see why certain financial interests are bitterly opposed to our organisation, and are fighting it in North Dakota; because we are cutting off some of the easy profits that have been made by these interests in the past.

ABOUT THAT FARGO BANK

One of the erroneous reports about the Non-Partisan League is the story of the so-called failure of the Scandinavian-American Bank at Fargo. Many publications received the impression that it was the Bank of North Dakota that had been closed. The Scandinavian-American Bank is an ordinary farmers' State bank, which had been friendly to the farmers' movement and which had helped to finance various farmers' organisations. The opposition to the Non-Partisan League movement, including the Attorney General of the State, who had turned traitor to our organisation, tried to discredit and put out of business this farmers' bank. It was illegally closed, as was shown by the Supreme Court decision, which finally reopened the bank. It is still doing business and should never have been closed.

The nation-wide coal strike which was called for November 1, 1919, naturally affected the coal mines of North Dakota. We are said to have the coldest State in the Union. Our Winter last year started about a month earlier than usual, snow covering the State from one to two feet by October 20, and if the mines had been closed long would necessarily have worked a great hardship and caused a great amount of suffering to the people of our State.

A conference was called between the operators and the miners for the purpose of trying to arrive at some compromise whereby the mines could be kept open. But after a lengthy discussion no agreement could be reached and the miners were called out.

After the mines had been closed for two days I issued a statement notifying the coal operators that unless they could reach an agreement with their miners to operate within forty-eight hours the mines would be taken over and operated by the State. No agreement was reached and the mines were taken over under martial law and placed under the authority of the Adjutant General, who swore in nine returned soldiers and sent them out to take charge.

The miners returned to work for the State at their previous wage scale and in two days' time were producing their normal output of coal. The proclamation stipulated that the mines were to be operated by the State until such time as an agreement was reached by the operators and miners of our largest mine. The men reached an agreement within five days and the property was turned back to the operators.

This largest mine is known as the Washburn Mine and is owned by the Washburn Flour Mill people at Minneapolis. Their attorney has threatened to bring suit against the State to recover the profits made during the five days the State operated their mine.

The effect of the State's operating the coal mines was that the coal was produced, suffering was prevented, and in all probability many deaths from freezing were prevented. Another result will undoubtedly be that the next session of the Legislature will make provision for a State-owned and operated coal mine.

The organised labor of North Dakota has affiliated with the farmers' organisation and has organised a Workingmen's Non-Partisan League. Their dues are one day's wages, which pays for their organisation work and pays the campaign expenses of men they indorse for the Legislature or of State officials, used in conjunction with the farmers' dues. We have had no labor troubles in North Dakota since the farmers got control of the State Administration. There has been less I. W. W. trouble in North Dakota during this time than in any other State where that kind of labor has been employed. We are firmly convinced that all the laboring men want is a square deal; and as a result of our giving them a square deal, there has been nothing but appreciation shown by them.

The farmers' Legislature passed some very progressive labor laws in 1919. Our workingmen's compensation law has been pronounced by experts the best in the United States. We enacted a minimum wage law and an eight-hour day law for women and minors.

REAL TEST OF LEAGUE

The organisation and success of our movement is largely due to the work of its national President, A. C. Townley, who has built the largest and most successful organisation of its kind in the history of the world. We have now more than 200,000 members scattered over more than a dozen States. We have in North Dakota two daily papers owned and controlled by the farmers and more than fifty weekly papers owned and controlled in the same way. The slogan of our newspaper organisaton is "Carry the Truth to the People," and it has been the means of informing the people of the facts of the political and economic situation of our State.

If this industrial program which we are putting into operation in North Dakota is not a success, if it does not directly benefit the majority of the people of our State, it will die a natural death and no man or any group of men can possibly keep it going. Then why is it necessary for the opposition to spend thousands upon thousands of dollars trying to discredit a movement which cannot possibly survive if it is not a benefit to the rank and file of the people?

On the other hand, if our movement is a success, if it is a benefit to the majority of our people, it is a good thing and should continue. If it succeeds in North Dakota it will spread to other States until it covers the entire nation. In my estimation, that which we have started in North Dakota is the one hope of putting the government of the various States and of the nation into the hands of the people. It is the one hope of reducing the high cost of living, of preventing profiteering, of quieting the unrest that is prevalent throughout the country. This change can be brought about in a true American manner by the use of the Non-Partisan ballot.

:-: City Growth And Rural Loss :-:

"We seem to be repeating the experience of ancient Rome in the matter of congesting the cities at the expense of the country," observes the Philadelphia Record, commenting on the new census figures for Akron, Ohio, which show a gain of 201.8 percent in population during the past ten years. A glimpse at Spokane's figures during the same period might reassure The Record if Spokane were not the only large city which shows a loss of population—a total of 198 persons in the ten years.

All other cities for which census figures are available are reported to have gained from 4.9 percent, in the instance of Louisville, Ky., to 67.4 percent in the case of Youngstown, Ohio. "We may look for a corresponding drop in the rural population, and this threatens to become an acute problem," concludes the Pittsburg Despatch.

But, we are reminded by the Charleston News and Courier, neither city nor country census figures have come up to expectations, "and it is likely that figures for the rural districts will be even more disappointing than have been those for towns and cities." "Farmers already are complaining of the great difficulty they experience in securing adequate help—a very unfortunate state of affairs at a time when so much depends upon the increased production of food, if living costs are to be kept down," the Philadelphia Record tells us. We read further:

"Gratifying as these increases are to the civic spirit of many communites, it must nevertheless be apparent that such gains can only be made at the expense of that population which lives outside of cities and towns. Neither immigration, which has been light for the past ten years, nor the natural increase by the preponderance of births over deaths, will account for the great urban growth revealed by the census returns. It can only be explained by greatly accelerated drift from the farm to the city—a movement which has been under way for many years."

"Mere numbers in population are as meaningless as tall buildings," we are assured by the Detroit News, yet the Wichita Eagle declares that "not a city has received its census report without a surprised and hurt expression, and a loud clamor about the inaccurate census." An exception might be made in the instance of the city which, in view of its 67,554 additional population between 1900 and 1910, would appear to have a better reason for questioning the Government's figures than any other city, Spokane, for it is credited with a loss of two-tenths percent. This city, however, like the "good sport" she is, admits her sins, "if sins they could have been called in 1910, when civic enterprise was at its most hectic 'booster' stage." Reading on in The Spokesman-Review of that city, we learn how the census was taken:

"In those fine, fair, boom days to count transient laborers and lodging-house casuals as residents was quite in harmony with the idea that the biggest city was the best city.

"The people here now belong here, live here, and will continue to live here.

"Since slow permanent growth is better than swift mushroom growth Spokane's condition today is far ahead of what it was ten years ago, and since the deflating had to be done sooner or later we ought to be glad to have it over with, unpleasant though it may be."

In other papers we are told that Spokane's losses will be offset by rural gains in that vicinity. In the connection, the Atlanta Journal comes forward with a comforting suggestion:

"If this prove the case we shall have good reason for rejoicing even though in many instances our city pride has had a fall. For if the erstwhile drift from the farm is turned and the all-important task of soil-production is assured more hands and heads, the nation's every interest will be advantaged, none more than that of the cities themselves. Most cites, after all, are dependent on the country for their bone-building, blood-reddening sustenance; and all must look to the farm for an abatement in the excessive cost of food.

"It should be remembered, moreover, that mere increase in population no more gages a city's real progress and worth than mere avoirdupois measures a man's strength or a woman's charm. Incomparably more important are good government, good streets, good schools, parks, play-grounds, and sanitation facilities, libraries, art museums, music advantages, and all else that makes for life's enrichment and elevation. Let these abound, and numbers will matter little."

The Springfield Republican, too, rises to ask "if it is not time for cities, as well as for the country at large, to take thought for quality as well as for size?"

The Minneapolis Tribune continues in the same vein and in greater detail:

"It is not numbers merely that make the great city. The distinction of Paris is not that she is second to London in Europe and slightly exceeds Berlin in population. The distinction of Paris is that as a city she is the fine expression of the taste and elegance of her people, their intelligence, their perception, their spirit. The Florence of Leonardo and Machiavelli was a city of sixty thousand. The Athens of Pericles, perhaps, had not much more than thirty thousand. Canton, China, has a million or so.

"The real rank of an American city today is not represented by its place in the census-list. Certainly New York is not the first city as regards government; in that respect it is near the tail end. A city a tenth or a twentieth the size of New York may excel in every respect that huge and misgoverned agglomeration.

"This obsession of size can be positively dangerous. Russia has hordes. But hordes will not conduct a republic nor save it in emergency. To be self-governing requires quality of a people, not aristocratic quality, but moral and mental quality. Such quality enabled the founders to establish this Republic and the generation of Lincoln to preserve it. Without such quality this nation, no matter how huge, would be the house founded upon sand which when the winds blow and the floods come can not endure."

Between 75 and 100 more cities of 100,000 and over are still to be reported.

The Silent Soldiers

(Japan Advertiser)

Steadily Haig and Pershing increase their distinction by not publishing a single word on the war. One by one other Generals succumb to the temptations of fighting their battles over again. Hindenburg has published an enormous volume of reminiscences.

General Mangin, one of the most brilliant of the French fighting generals, is contributing to the Revue des Deux Mondes a brilliant series of articles on "How the War Finished."

In the mid-April number he announces the somewhat surprising opinion that the Germans could have been beaten in 1917 if the methods of the Somme battle in 1916 had been continued.

This is a decidedly interesting commentary on a vast operation which was sometimes not thought at the time to have justified its cost.

But Mangin points out that the enemy had lost as many men on the Somme in two months as they had lost in six months at Verdun, while the whole offensive cost less in five months than the battle of Champagne (September, 1915) had cost in a fortnight.

He quotes Ludendorff's admission that in September, 1916, the Germans "were always on the eve of a catastrophe," and he contrasts the appreciation shown by the British of the real meaning of the Somme when they promoted Sir Douglas Haig to the rank of Field-Marshal simultaneously with the disappointment of French opinion, which resulted in the retirement of General Joffre from active command and the removal of General Foch from his post of the Commander of the Group of Armies of the North.

General Joffre, he reports, proposed to Sir Douglas Haig to continue the action, but the British Commander-in-Chief considered that the strain on his troops would be too great. He had had five months of incessant attack against formidable positions and had suffered half a million casualties.

If Joffre had been Generalissimo with power to order a continuation of the Somme battle, General Mangin believes the war would have been won in 1917. But Joffre was not made Generalissimo; he was even removed from the chief command of the French armies.

Joffre's plan was overruled in favor of General Nivelle's disastrous scheme which ended in terrific loss at the Chemin des Dames. If Sir Douglas Haig had acted on General Joffre's request he would have been left with an exhausted and depleted army to face the uphill work of keeping the Germans busy all summer and autumn of 1917 while the French gallantly and patiently retrieved their calamity.

In some respects it was fortunate that unity of command had not been achieved before Nivelle's misfortune.

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

How Water Changes Its Form When Subjected To Heat And Cold, But Cannot Be Destroyed By Any Agency

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

"As I understand, science says this earth was a mass of fire, something like the sun. How, then, did all the water get here?—P. B."

This question is worth answering because a great many persons are mystified over the relations between water and fire or great heat. They neglect to take account of the fact that water, without losing its essential nature as a particular chemical combination, appears in three different states, viz., as a liquid, a solid and a vapor, and that what determines which of these states water shall take is simply the heat it contains.

When a stream of water is thrown upon a fire, at first the water is turned to steam and flies away, and for a little while the fire seems to gain the victory by annihilating the water. But later, as more water is thrown on, the fire dies out and the water, in its liquid state, remains in possession of the field, inundating the blackened ruins. The water has truly annihilated the fire, whose energy it has exhausted.

But none of the water that the fire at first sent hissing into disappearing clouds was destroyed. If there had been a dome over the scene of the conflagration that same water might eventually have come running back again down the walls or falling in showers in the liquid state as when it spurted from the nozzle of the fire-engine. As its temperature fell it would condense back into the liquid condition.

A THREE-FOLD LIFE

Because of this three-fold life, water can laugh at fire. And so, too, it can laugh at frost, for all that frost can do to it is to reduce its temperature until from the liquid it turns, temporarily, into the solid state. It never loses its nature; it is still oxide of hydrogen, whether it floats as a cloud, drives a piston as steam, flows in a liquid stream, buoys up a ship, or, as ice, makes a rigid bridge over a lake or a river, or caps a mountain with a glittering helmet.

In the nebular theory of the origin of the sun and its planets it is necessarily assumed that all the matter composing that system was originally contained uncondensed in the nebula, where the elements had not yet formed combinations. But after the nebula had condensed, creating a huge sun at the center, with a number of very much smaller bodies, the planets, revolving around it, chemical combinations began to take place in the planets as they cooled off, and thus minerals and gaseous compounds were formed.

Now, consider the earth at the time when it had so far cooled that a crust of rock was forming upon its surface. Among the combinations of chemical elements that had taken place was water, composed of oxygen and hydrogen. But in which of its three states must that water have been at the moment when the crust of the planet was yet very hot?

Evidently it could not have been liquid, because at a temperature of 100 deg. C., water turns to vapor (steam). That is the boiling point of water. We must, then, suppose that the only water upon the earth at that time existed in the state of vapor, which hovered over the hot planet as an atmosphere of dense clouds.

But the rocky surface of the earth continued to cool until the temperature became low enough to permit water to assume its liquid state, and in that form to condense and descend from the atmosphere, and to rest in the great depressions that we call the ocean beds, which seem to have been formed very early in the geological history of the earth. Why was not the whole earth covered with water? It would have been if its surface had been smooth and truly spherical, but, as already said, depressions had been formed in it, in some manner, and these were capacious enough to contain the amount of water that was formed. If that amount had been great enough there would have been no dry land, notwithstanding the irregularities of the surface.

ANOTHER THEORY

If instead of the nebular theory of the earth's origin we take the planetesimal theory, which assumes that the earth was formed by the falling together of multitudes of small masses of matter, still the first appearance of water was probably in the vaporous state. Professor Chamberlin, the inventor of the planetesimal hypothesis, says: "The liquid state is water's normal form under most terrestial conditions. None the less water-vapor was doubtless the parental form of the whole hydrosphere." By "hydrosphere" is meant the total water surrounding the earth in whatever state it may be.

To put the whole matter in a nutshell, water in the state of vapor could exist around a hot earth, and when the earth cooled the water could assume the liquid state and rest upon it.

:-: Vanity, All Is Vanity :-:

BY MARIA CRAWFORD

It seemed the very irony of fate that after he had run away from her and had schooled himself to—almost—forget her, he should discover her in his congregation one Sunday morning when he entered the pulpit of the rich church to which the kindly old Bishop had sent him.

He had admirably served his quadrennium in a small town and had created so much favorable criticism by his oratory and powerful ability to drive the truth home that the Bishop had gone quietly to hear the fiery young preacher and to find out for himself whether or not there was a new Daniel come to judgment in the Methodist church, as many had averred.

So it was that Bob Wharton, at thirty-five, was minister to those souls worshiping in the great Church Street Church, a magnificent pile of stone and mortar that cost a quarter of a million.

Eager, alert in mind and body, and singularly well satisfied with the way the world was treating him. Bob Wharton had risen behind the mahogany stand and surveyed the congregation assembled to hear him preach in the best charge the bishop had it in his power to assign.

And then he saw her! He wondered afterward how he had managed to get through his carefully prepared and memorised sermon.

He had been in love with her, and it had been apparent that Amy loved him, too. But he had never told her. He had gone away, brave in his young untried courage, determined to sacrifice the flesh for the spirit.

Amy Wallace was too frivolous for a minister's wife. Even the most casual observer could see that. She wore the frilliest of frilly clothes, tip-tilted slippers with flashing buckles and she had hats and parasols to match every gown. She wore jewelry, a jeweled wrist watch, a diamond bar pin that had been her mother's and three rings.

So Bob had bravely thrust his ministerial hopes before his man's desire and had gone away without even whispering to Amy a word of that love seething in his heart. And just when he was beginning to grow accustomed to his self-imposed abnegation when he was beginning to think of the advice of his presiding elder and look forward to a safe and sane marriage, with no hint of passion to mar the calm security of such advantageous union, Amy appeared in his church.

After services she came forward with her hostess, Mrs. Taylor Brown, to speak to him.

"Amy tells me that she used to know you years ago," said Mrs Taylor Brown, "so I persuaded her to come up to speak to you She is going to be here with me all this week. I hope you'll call."

Then Amy's voice. "No," she amended. "I'll have to go away tomorrow night. I've just had a special delivery. We feel very proud of you at home, Bob Everybody will be glad to hear of your success. Goodbye."

He could not let her go like that he thought, yet he stood there stupidly staring until she had turned away. She was not the Amy that he remembered. She was a slim, plainly tailored girl, with a broad brimmed sailor on her fluffy blonde head. There was not the flash of a jewel or a buckle about her.

"Amy, wait for me, alone, at the vestry door, please!" The words spilled themselves out of his constricted throat. Her wide eyes, swimming in tears, met his for one fleeting second while she nodded assent.

It did not take more than a minute to whisk through doors find his hat and help Amy into the smart new roadster that his board had just given him and go rolling away on a white ribbon of twisting road. "I'm taking the long way round to the house where you are visiting, he laughed boyishly. "It's wonderful to have you here beside me."

Mrs. Taylor Brown met them at the entrance. "Hasn't Amy a few minutes to spare? I've been begging her to let me call this afternoon?" he told her.

"Oh, but she can't," said that good lady. "You know Amy is an expert on organising children's societies in churches. Didn't you know? Our Sunday school superintendent sent for her to come here. She's doing marvellous work."

Bob Wharton looked straight at Amy. The sudden color in her cheeks told him plainer than words could have done just why she had gone into religious work. It explained, too, just what had become of the "gew gaws" which the girl had loved so well.

The old bull dog squareness of jaw that had made him a formidable tackle back in college dave made itself evident again. He put his hand masterfully, possessively, on Amy's arm. "I'll be at the church at 3 o'clock," he said authoritatively. "When you are through there we'll go to the manse for supper with mother. I want you to see the place, anyway, for if I can change it, you're going to be calling it home pretty soon."

ASSOCIATE LIKES JOHN W. DAVIS FOR PRESIDENCY

Pays High Tribute To His Services To Government As Solicitor General

HE SHONE IN GREAT CASES

Most Notable Were The Income Tax, Selective Draft And Anti-Trust Suits

Washington, May 24.—The suggestion of John W. Davis, now Ambassador to Great Britain, as a Presidential nominee continued to attract attention in Washington today. Among Democrats, the "old line Democracy" of Mr. Davis appeared to have a peculiar and strong appeal. Republicans consider the Ambassador as a man of force, and one whose name and personality would give much strength to his candidacy.

Attracted by the editorial of Sunday in The New York Times, suggesting Mr. Davis as a fitting candidate, a former close associate of the former Solicitor-General prepared an appreciation of him for The Times. The writer preferred that his name be not used on the ground that his close friendship might make it appear that Mr. Davis was an active seeker for the nomination. Mr. Davis's friend wrote:

"To the Solicitor-General of the United States is especially confided the preparation, presentation and control of all Government litigation in the Supreme Court of the United States and in other appellate tribunals. The vast amounts and the general importance of the interests involved in such litigation makes the selection of a Solicitor-General of corresponding importance.

"From the first appearance of Mr. Davis before it, the Supreme Court of the United States felt assured of the proper presentation of all Government cases. His reputation grew with each successive appearance until at the time of his resignation (to become American Ambassador at the Court of St. James) he was generally recognised as one of the very ablest of the many able incumbents in that office.

"Among the important revenue cases which Mr. Davis presented to the Supreme Court were the income tax cases, the 5 percent discount customs cases and the first corporation stock dividend cases. He also argued three important anti-trust suits, involving respectively, the Reading, Harvester and the United States Steel Corporations.

"He presented the Government's view of the constitutionality of the child labor law in a case which, perhaps more than any other of recent times, aroused discussion among lawyers as to the powers, under its Constitution, of the Federal Government in its relation to the States. Other cases presented by him to that court which involved constitutional questions of more than usual interest and importance were those dealing with the validity of the section of the Federal Reserve act which empowered member banks to act as trustee, as well as the oil tank car cases, dealing with the power of Interstate Commerce Commission to order railroads to increase their tank-car equipment; while late in his incumbency he argued to that tribunal for the constitutionality of the selective draft law, than which no question ever more vitally affected the interests of all classes of the citizens of this country.

"It has been said of him in the circles of the Supreme Court that none was uniformly more prepared, more adequate in presentation or more thorough in his mastery of law and facts. Felicity of expression was a characteristic of his briefs. Not infrequently in its opinions—and notably in the selective draft cases—that court availed itself of Mr. Davis's language and paid him the rare compliment of quoting apt phrases with appropriate references.

"In addition to his general court duties, Mr. Davis was frequently consulted by the President and the various departments, while Congressmen often sought his advice on important war statutes. He was also ex officio the counsel for the American Red Cross.

"Dignified in appearance, facile in expression, impressive in delivery and always courteous, he was able to realise to the fullest extent his profound legal learning and to impress his auditors with his unusual faculty of clear thinking. These distinctive traits earned for him an exceptional reputation as a great Solicitor General.

"Of the man himself, his admirable qualities make it hard for a friend to speak in moderation so as to avoid the charge of partiality. As firm as he is gentle, as purposeful as he is considerate, as charitable to the frailties of others as he is sternly critical of his own vigorous, but never harsh; wholly without mannerisms or artifices; patient toward the impetuous; tolerant of extremists; deferential to the aged; loyal to friends; always ready to meet responsibilities in his earnest moments, be merry as a boy in his hours of relaxation; with a keen sense of humor (together with a faculty of pithy expression, all the more engaging because of the composure of his features meanwhile); breathing, thinking, and acting in a spirit of highest patriotism; ever responding in full measure to every known test of a manly man, and with a natural charm that cannot be overstated; the elements are so mixed up in him as to attract acquaintances and to endear him to his friends."

The human side of Mr. Davis was picturesquely illustrated by another friend who often played golf in Washington with the Ambassador. This man said:

"I never knew him to lose his self-poise, except after a second successive poor drive against Colonel Bogey, and then, it may be added, that the least said about what he said, the better—though, perhaps, it may be truthfully characterised as awesome. I never saw him manifest any extreme temper except when he carefully laid his driver on a rock and jumped on the middle of it to break the shaft, with the remark that it would never deceive another man."

MILLION ACRES FOR ALASKA SETTLERS

Grand Rush Expected Soon As Government Railroad Is Ready For Business

Anchorage, Alaska, May 1.—Alexander T. Vogelsang, Acting Secretary of the Interior, reports that more than 1,000,000 acres of agricultural land has been surveyed in Alaska and that it may be available for entry and patent under the public domain laws. A large part of this land is within country traversed by or tributary to the Government railroad under construction.

Under the Coal Lands Leasing Law, enacted in October, 1914 coal lands in the Bering River, Cook Inlet, Matanuska and Nenana coal fields have been divided into leasing blocks or units, ready for sale. The two last named fields are tributary to the Government railroad.

New town sites have been established on the public lands along the line of the railroad and lots for business and residential purposes disposed of through the Land and Industrial Department of the Alaskan Engineering Commission.

As soon as arrangements are completed for traffic on the Government railroad large numbers of settlers are expected to rush into the agricultural districts.
